DR. MILLER KILLS SELF WHEN ABOUT TO BE ARRESTED

Advertising Specialist, About to Be Charged With Fraud, Takes Poison at Home.

NOTE BLAMES NEWSPAPER

Federal Officers, Seeking His Assistant, Dr. Fayn, Find Office Closed.

Dr. James L. Miller, advertising specialist, with an office at 1230 Olive street, killed himself at his home, 5709 Julian avenue, at 5 p. m. Tuesday, by swallowing carbolic acid. An information charging him with using the mails to defraud had been prepared, during the afternoon, by Assistant United States District Attorney Daues, and Daues intended to ask United States Commissioner Mitchell Wednesday to issue a warrant for Miller's arrest.

The charges on which Daues based his action were made by representatives of the "New St. Louis Star," which for a week past has printed attacks on Dr. Miller and other advertising specialists, terming them "quacks," and which has caused several arrests, including that of Dr. Paul Fayn, Dr. Miller's assistant, on charges of obtaining money under false pretenses.

Note Blamed Newspaper.

Two notes left by Dr. Miller were found by his wife when she discovered Miller's body. One of them she did not make public, but the Rev. Dr. W. J. Williamson, who saw the note, told a Post-Dispatch reporter that it contained the declaration, "The Star has ruined my business." The other note instructed Mrs. Miller as to business matters.

The Federal Prosecutor took the same action against Dr. Fayn, Miller's assistant, that was taken against Miller, and a warrant against Fayn was issued Wednesday, with Postoffice Inspector Wynne named as complaining witness. When Federal officers called at Dr. Miller's office in search of Fayn, they found it closed.

Whether Dr. Miller knew of his impending arrest is not certain. His lawyer, Chase Morsey, had notified him during the afternoon of the granting, by Judge Kinsey, of a temporary injunction prohibiting the "New Star" from sending reporters to his office, or from "picketing" the premises with photographers, to take snapshots of visitors and prospective patients.

This was considered by Morsey a victory for Dr. Miller, particularly as Judge Kinsey previously had refused to grant such an injunction. An amended petition, in which Miller set forth that he was a reputable practitioner, caused the judge to change his decision in part. The temporary injunction was to remain in force until Monday, when the "New Star" would have been required to show why it should not be made permanent.

Since the New Star began its campaign its newsboys have been particularly active at Thirteenth and Olive streets, in front of Dr. Miller's office, shouting "All about the war on quacks! Read all about the arrest of the quacks!"

Dr. Miller's advertisement, last published in a morning paper Tuesday, was headed, "Dr. Miller Cures Men, Under Guarantee."

His Ad Offered Guarantee.

The advertisement said to prospective patients, "See Dr. Miller personally. I am no medical company." It then recited a list of the complaints which he professed to cure. "I treat you under guarantee," the advertisement read. "No money need be paid until cured. If you cannot call, write Dr. Miller. Examination free."

The "New Star," in its first article announcing its campaign against advertising specialists, last Wednesday, stated that Dr. Miller just had been arrested on charges of obtaining money under false pretenses. In later editions it corrected this announcement to read that Dr. Paul Fayn, Dr. Miller's assistant, had been arrested, and explained that Dr. Fayn had represented himself, to the Star's investigators, as Miller.

The New Star stated that Dr. Fayn posing as Dr Miller, diagnosed the case of one of its reporters, who previously had been examined by Health Department physicians, and found to be in first-class physical condition. Fayn told the reporter, it is alleged, that he was in need of a course of treatment which would cost him $27.50, and he required the payment of a part of the money at the time of the first treatment, it was stated.

Pastor Commends Miller.

The Rev. Dr. Williamson, who is to conduct Dr. Miller's funeral, said Wednesday he believed Miller was an honest and conscientious practitioner, and that he did not believe Miller would make a false diagnosis merely to get a patient's money. He said he regarded Miller as a man of fine character, and good professional attainments, whose only fault, if it was a fault, was his refusal to adhere to the medical code of ethics, which prohibits advertising. Mrs. Miller is a member of Dr. Williamson's church, the Third Baptist. Miller was a member of Tuscan Masonic Lodge.

JEFFERSON DAVIS' RELICS TO GO TO SON-IN-LAW

War Department Decides to Turn Over Pistols to Joseph A. Hayes of Colorado.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—Jefferson Davis' two duelling pistols, a double-barreled pistol and appurtenances, seized by Union troops near the close of the Civil War, which have been in the custody of the War Department nearly 50 years, will be turned over to Joseph A. Hayes of Colorado, whose wife is the eldest daughter of the former President of the Confederacy.

The shawl and raglan belonging to Mrs. Davis, said to have been worn by Davis when he was captured, were not included among the articles for which Hayes asked, but they will be returned if Davis' heirs ask for them.

Secretary Garrison decided today to return the relics on an opinion by Attorney-General McReynolds, that Davis never had been deprived legally of his ownership of the property and that all his rights in it had been restored to him by virtue of the terms of the proclamation of pardon and amnesty issued by President Johnson in 1868.

BRITISH SUBMARINE IS FOUND 200 FEET DOWN

"A7," Which Disappeared Friday, Discovered at Bottom of Plymouth Sound.

PLYMOUTH, England, Jan. 21.—The British submarine "A7," which disappeared Friday during maneuvers in Plymouth Sound, was found today on the bottom at a depth of 200 feet.

The submarine carried 11 men at the time of the accident.

A number of hydroaeroplanes attached to the British navy had been sent to Whitesand Bay to aid the search for the submarine.

Objects under the water are seen much more easily from a height such as an aeroplane would maintain than from the deck of a ship.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—A gallery observer who listened closely to President Wilson's reading of his trust address in the House made these notes on the President's pronunciation: Either, pronounced eyether; been, pronounced bean; personnel, pronounced pare-so-nell.

BOY TESTIFIES SCHOOL PRINCIPAL HIT HIM 25 TIMES

Charles Melcher, 14, Tells of Whipping in Court in Trial of J. Stanley Nantz.

"WHIP SOAKED IN LIQUID"

Youth Declares New Rattan Stick Was Used on Back; Jury Is Not Requested.

Charles Melcher, 14 years old, of 2926 Texas avenue, a pupil at the Garfield School, on the witness stand in Judge Miller's division of the Court of Criminal Correction, Wednesday, related that on Dec. 8, he was whipped 25 times with a new rattan whip in the hands of J. Stanley Nantz, principal of this school. He was the State's first witness against Nantz, who is charged with assault and battery.

The boy declared he was struck at least 18 times across the back, while the remainder of the blows were across his legs. He said the punishment left him sick and nervous, and he could not sleep for three nights. The whip, he declared, had been soaked in some liquid, as the principal wiped it across his arm before he applied it.

That the Board of Education intended to make a firm defense in the case was indicated when Nantz went to trial.

Summoned as witnesses in Nantz's behalf were Superintendent Ben Blewett and Dr. James Stewart, physician for the board. Nantz was defended by E. M. Grossman, attorney for the board.

Melcher was a pupil under Miss Margaret Hereen. He was sent to the principal to be disciplined, because he refused to recite with the other pupils in his room.

The maximum penalty for assault and battery is $100 fine or six months in jail, or both. A jury was waived. The boy was in court with his father.

Boy Tells of Whipping.

On the stand the boy told that he was struck 25 times, 18 of the blows on his back and the remainder on his legs.

After being sent to the principal, the boy declared he explained the circumstances of his refusal to recite, and that the principal then said he must be punished. Pointing to an old whip, the principal remarked, the boy testified, that "it was not good enough," and that "a new one was needed."

"He gave me a note to take home to my father, which I did," young Melcher told the Court. "Papa went to see Mr. Nantz and told him not to whip me, and that if I was whipped, he would see the Prosecuting Attorney about it.

"When I went to school next morning, I was sent to see Mr. Nantz. He had a new whip, which he had soaked in something, for he was wiping it off on his coat. He hit me about 25 times, but mostly on the back. He struck me six or seven times on the legs.

Goes Home at Recess.

"I wanted to go home, but he made me go back to my room, and I had to wait until recess. Then I went home."

The boy also testified that he was rendered sick and nervous as a result of the punishment, and was sleepless for three nights.

In cross-examination, Attorney Grossman sought to show the boy wore two pairs of trousers, in anticipation of the punishment. The boy stoutly denied it.

Dr. George E. Anderson, 3105 South Jefferson avenue, testified to the extent of young Melcher's injuries and his condition. He said the boy had a number of welts across his back, shoulders and legs, and that one of the welts "was oozing, and looked raw and beefy."

He described the youth as being normally of a highly nervous nature, and declared the whipping had intensified the nervousness. He said the boy complained of inability to sleep. He treated the youth several times, he testified.

These 10 members of the House of Delegates are blocking the completion of the free bridge by failure to support the Hines bill providing for a bond issue of $2,750,000. Their excuse in general is that they fear the bond issue will not pass. By their stand they are refusing to permit the people to have another opportunity to determine whether they will complete the bridge by bond issue. The table above shows how the people of their wards voted on the bond issue in August, 1912, and again in November of that year. The August vote is regarded as the more accurate expression of the sentiment of the voters, and in the November election many constitutional amendments were submitted, and the bond issue was scratched along with the amendments.

In five of the 10 wards, in the August special election, the bonds received more than the necessary two-thirds majority and a majority of the voters were for the bonds again in November. These wards were, the Sixth, represented by Delegate Meisner; the Eighth, represented by Delegate Ford; the Sixteenth, represented by Delegate McCarthy; the Twenty-second, represented by Delegate Scully, and the Twenty-third, represented by Delegate Hoffner.

If these five delegates should now represent the sentiment of the people of their respective wards, as it was expressed at the polls, and join the members who favor the Hines bill it would assure the submission of the bond issue in April, and thus pave the way for the resumption of construction work on the uncompleted free bridge before the end of the year 1914.

OCEAN STEAMER COULD NOW PASS THROUGH BIG CANAL

Col. Goethals Says There Are 30 Feet of Water in Culebra Cut and in Slide.

PANAMA, Jan. 21.—The Panama canal has reached such a condition of completion that a large ocean steamer could now pass through, according to a statement today by Col. Goethals.

There is 30 feet depth of water through the Culebra Cut and the Cucarocha Slide, and it is Col. Goethal's intention to send a Panama railroad steamer through the canal in April.

Both ends of the canal are practically completed, only the electrical installation and clearing up being unfinished.

BANKER WHO MADE AND UNMADE TOWN SENTENCED

FORT SMITH, Ark., Jan. 21.—Martin Korff of Rolla, Mo., former cashier of the defunct Bank of Everton, at Everton, Ark., pleaded guilty to embezzlement of the bank's funds today and was sentenced to 12 years in the State penitentiary.

Korff is said practically to have made and unmade the town of Everton. He went there two years ago when the place had only a half dozen houses. He induced the citizens to organize a Commercial Club, which attracted an industry or two. Later he formed the Bank of Everton and had the town incorporated. He ran for Mayor, but Everton citizens turned against him as a "stranger," and he was defeated. It was charged he brought about the wrecking of the bank because of this defeat.

With the failure of the bank and the arrest of Korff, the town dwindled into a mere village again.

MOBILE, Ala., Jan. 21.—The first straw hat of 1914 appeared in Mobile today. Spring-like weather prevails. Straw hats usually are not worn here previous to March 1.

CHAIN OF RADIUM HOSPITALS PLAN OF A PHILANTHROPIST

Witness Tells House Committee Friend Is Considering Erection of 20 Buildings.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—Vigorous opposition to the proposal to withdraw radium lands from entry was made before the House Mines Committee today by Thomas R. Henahen, State Mining Commissioner of Colorado, who declared such action would ruin the radium mining industry.

"All we want is to be let alone," he declared. We are getting out the radium. If you tie up these lands, prospectors will not go into them. As it is, 99 out of 100 prospectors fail. What they need is encouragement, not discouragement, if this radium is to be mined."

Joseph M. Flannery, president of the Standard Chemical Co. of Pittsburg, said his company had spent in three years $650,000 to produce two grams of radium. The effort had been inspired by the fact that a close relative was afflicted with cancer, he said. The grams cost $480,000 to produce, he estimated, and brought in $240,000. In April, he said, the company would be producing one gram a month.

"There is enough radium ore in Colorado to supply the world five times over," said Flannery. "Only 200 grams are needed for the whole United States. I will undertake to deliver to the Government in five years from Jan. 1, 1915, 200 grams of radium at a maximum price of $80,000 a gram."

Flannery told the committee he had a friend "philanthropically inclined" whose name he declined to give, who was considering spending $15,000,000 building 20 radium hospitals in sections of the country where they would serve 66 per cent of the population. Each would be endowed with five grams of radium, not only for the treatment of cancer, but also other diseases. He said he expected a decision soon. Flannery intimated, under questioning by committeemen, that the man he was speaking of was neither John D. Rockefeller nor Andrew Carnegie.

TOWN WELL IN KANSAS BECOMES TOO HOT TO USE

For Five Days Water From 750 Feet Underground at Girard Has Been at 119 Degrees.

PITTSBURG, Kan., Jan. 21.—For five days the deep well which has supplied the city of Girard, 10 miles from here, with water for many years, has been yielding water too hot to be used even for bathing purposes until cooled. For five days the water has been at a temperature of 119 degrees.

This morning the water plant superintendent discovered that the hard rubber valves in the big pumps had been so softened by the hot water that the pumps were failing.

So the plant was shut down and Girard consumers are obtaining their water from shallow wells, cisterns and other sources at considerable inconvenience.

Some local scientists attribute the phenomenon to the volcanic disturbances in Japan. Others say some chemical action has caused it. Samples of the hot water have been sent to the University of Kansas. The well is 750 feet deep.

Hot Well Mystery of Girard, Kan., Too Deep for State Geologist.

LAWRENCE, Kan., Jan. 21.—Prof. Erasmus Haworth, State Geologist, cannot explain the strange hot water mystery of Girard, Kan.

"I have never heard of a similar case," he said. "The fact that neighboring towns have not reported a similar condition proves that the condition is purely local."

Prof. Haworth scouted suggestions that the change in the water was caused by the recent volcanic disturbances in Japan.

FIVE BURNED TO DEATH

ALPENA, Mich., Jan. 21.—Five persons were burned to death here late last night in a fire which destroyed the residence of Samuel Bloise.

The dead are Mrs. Bloise, three children and her brother-in-law. Bloise, a 14-year-old son and an infant escaped.

TWO MORE DELEGATES JOIN MOVEMENT TO COMPLETE THE BRIDGE

Deffaa and Klug Now Favor Hines Bill Which Would Submit Bond Issue of $2,750,000.

ONLY TEN OPPOSE PLAN, WITH ONE NONCOMMITTAL

Gallagher, House Leader, Who Has Held Up Measure Since Nov. 21, as Chairman of Railroads Committee, Is Most Ardent Champion of Alton & Mississippi Approach.

Shall the City Pay $7,000,000 to Finish Bridge or $2,750,000?

TWO BILLS for the completion of the Free Bridge are pending in the Municipal Assembly. One provides that the city shall contract to lease and eventually buy an East Side approach to be built by the Alton & Mississippi promoters, at a cost to the city of approximately $7,000,000. Some of the supporters of the scheme suggest as an alternative that the city itself build the approach as planned by the A. & M. promoters, which could be done, it is estimated, at a cost of $4,200,000.

THE other bill provides that the city shall build its own approach on the route already located (the Reber), and on which the city has already spent $140,000, AT A COST OF ONLY $2,750,000.

The Hines bill, passed by the Council Nov. 21 provides for a special election, at which the people may vote on the proposed bond issue of $2,750,000. The Post-Dispatch calls upon the House of Delegates to pass the Hines bill, that the people may decide the Free-Bridge question.

Two more members of the House of Delegates have assured the Post-Dispatch of their support in the campaign started by the Post-Dispatch Monday to pass the Hines bill submitting a bond issue of $2,750,000 to public vote that the Free Bridge may be completed and work started before the end of the present year.

Only 10 of the 28 members are now on record as positively opposing the Hines bill, with one noncommittal.

Monday the Post-Dispatch polled 25 of the 28 members of the House of Delegates, and 12 of them stated they would oppose the Hines bill, which would permit the public to decide on the construction of the highway and railway approaches in Illinois for which land has been purchased. Delegate Ebrecht of the Eleventh Ward declined to state his attitude on the Hines bill.

Tuesday the Post-Dispatch published the vote on bond issues submitted in August and November, 1912, showing that in each of the wards represented by these thirteen a majority was registered for the bonds at one or both elections. In six of the wards, the two-thirds majority necessary to authorize the bond issue was recorded for the measure.

Deffaa and Klug for Hines Bill.

At the House meeting Tuesday night, Post-Dispatch reporters asked the 13 delegates who had declined to say they would vote for the Hines bill, whether they considered they were properly representing their constituents in refusing to submit again the bond issue, for which a majority in their respective wards voted affimatively.

Two of the thirteen announced that they would vote for the Hines bill if the Railroads Committee will report it. Delegate Edward H. Deffaa of the Seventh Ward and Delegate Henry Klug of the Tenth Ward are the two who pledged support.

The replies of the others follow:

HERMAN J. MEISNER, Sixth Ward: I realize that in the last two bond issue votes, my ward returned big majorities; in fact, the necessary two-thirds vote to carry them. I did not consider only my ward in deciding against another submission of bonds to build the Reber approach. I think the whole city should be considered, and the bonds failed three times in the whole city. I don't see how anyone can propose to submit another expensive bond issue in view of this fact. I think the bonds would probably get two-thirds majority again in my ward, but I am against another election on that proposition.

HENRY KLUG, Tenth Ward: I am not opposed to submitting the Reber approach bonds again. They got majorities in my ward once, and failed to get a majority last time, but I am willing to vote for another election.

HENRY F. EBRECHT, Eleventh Ward: I know the sentiment of the people in my ward in regard to the Reber approach." Ebrecht has declined to state his position on either the Hines bond issue bill or the Alton & Mississippi bill. The Eleventh Ward voted 1918 for and 1408 against the bridge bonds in the August, 1912, election. In November, 1912, the vote was 2222 for and 2627 against the bonds.

ANDREW SCULLY, Twenty-second Ward: The reason I won't support the Reber approach is that the former administration, which located it, admitted that it ought to extend out of East St. Louis, and passed a bill to make a contract with the Alton & Southern Railroad for an extension. The railroad refused to sign the contract, and the city was then without even this grade crossing line as an outlet. When that contract fell through it amounted to the failure of the bill locating the Reber approach because the contract was an important part of it.

I want it distinctly understood that I am willing to submit a bond issue for $2,750,000 or any other amount to construct any approach but the Reber approach. The main portion of the Alton & Mississippi approach can be built for less than $1,500,000, and takes our bridge out of East St. Louis. I know what the vote was on bond issues in my ward and I know how the vote was got out. I am not afraid to go back to the people in my ward with the record of having opposed the Reber approach.

CHARLES A. GROESCHEL, Twenty-fourth Ward: You don't have to show me the figures on the

ST. LOUIS WANTS 10 STATES, PARTS OF 2, IN BANKING ZONE

Festus J. Wade and F. O. Watts, Appearing Before Houston and McAdoo, Show Why This City Should Have Regional Reserve Institution, and Territory It Should Govern.

$246,000,000 LOANED IN DESIRED DISTRICT

Wade Declares Foreign Exchange in Proposed Region Would Be Next to Largest in United States; Shapleigh Gives Commercial Figures.

That St. Louis will have a regional reserve bank and be the center of one of the regional districts to be established under the new banking law seemed to be taken for granted Wednesday by St. Louis financiers and business men, who appeared before Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo and Secretary of Agriculture Houston, the members of the National Reserve Bank Organization Committee, who opened a two-days' hearing in the Court of Appeals room in the Federal Building.

While some arguments for the selection of St. Louis as a reserve center were advanced, most of those who appeared before the committee devoted their efforts to stating their belief that the regional district assigned to St. Louis should comprise the territory now commercially tributary to St. Louis.

More than 200 St. Louis bankers and merchants were present when the hearing started.

Secretaries Houston and McAdoo were scheduled to arrive in St. Louis at 7:40 a. m., but their train did not pull into Union Station until 9:40. They went to the Jefferson Hotel and from there walked to the Federal Building.

Purpose of Hearing Explained.

Secretary McAdoo called the meeting to order and Secretary Houston made a brief statement as to the purpose of the hearing.

Festus J. Wade, president of the Mercantile Trust Co. and the Mercantile National Bank, was the first speaker to put forward St. Louis' claims. He said:

"The territory we suggest is larger than we desire, but recognizing that all parts of the country must be served, we have embraced certain sections which are constant borrowers, while on the other hand we are constant lenders.

"Oct. 21, 1913, the date of the last call of the Comptroller of the Currency, the banks and trust companies of St. Louis had loans in the territory we are asking for, unpaid and outstanding, to the amount of $246,434,000.

No Bank Failure in 25 Years.

"St. Louis has been immune from bank failures for more than 25 years. St. Louis has a larger percentage of capital invested in its banks and trust companies, in proportion to its deposits, than any city in the United States with a population of 200,000 or over. In other words, for every dollar we owe our depositors we have at least 25 per cent of our own capital invested to protect our depositors. This is a showing worthy of your most serious consideration, and one of the main reasons why we voluntarily offer to embrace a large borrowing territory.

"Every fall a cry goes up for money for crop-moving purposes. We have always been able to take care of our legitimate customers at a legitimate rate of interest, regardless of the general condition of the money market. There never has been a day, week or month when any banker, planter or farmer in the South or Southwest, banking in St. Louis and entitled to credit, was delayed one hour in getting all the cash or credit needed to move crops in that locality to market, not excepting the panicky days of 1907."

Facts and Figures Presented.

Wade said St. Louisans owned more than 95 per cent of the nearly $80,000,000 invested in financial institutions here, and that St. Louisans owned 85 per cent of the capital invested in more than 16,000 corporations and firms doing business in this city.

He emphasized the agricultural, manufacturing and mineral wealth of the country tributary to St. Louis. He said that, while heretofore nearly all foreign exchange transactions have gravitated to the East, St. Louis can develop a foreign exchange business that would rank second among the regional banks, if a reserve bank is placed here with the territory suggested.

He called attention to the importance of state banks and trust companies in the financial system, and said there were 4910 such institutions, and 1483 national banks, in the proposed St. Louis territory, with a total capital and surplus of $558,514,000, of which St. Louis financial institutions make up one-seventh. The total deposits of the territory are $1,859,033,000, and of this, he said, St. Louis institutions have one-sixth.

Eight Regional Banks Recommended.

Wade said banks ineligible for membership would be liberally treated by the member banks in the St. Louis district, and would be encouraged, when conditions should justify, to increase their capital stock to the amount required for eligibility. In concluding, he recommended that the minimum number of regional banks under the law, eight, be established, to be increased if this should be found advisable. The maximum is 12.

In reply to a question by Secretary Houston, Wade said foreign bankers and merchants would be quick to realize the strength of a system which would place the control of foreign exchange in eight regional banks, instead of in New York alone.

F. O. Watts, president of the Third National Bank, gave the reasons for selecting the territory which St. Louis desires to be the reserve center.

12 States in Territory.

This territory includes Missouri, Kansas, Arkansas, Texas, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi, Louisiana, Southern Illinois and Southern Indiana.

This district, Watts said, is naturally tributary to St. Louis, and is the district in which St. Lous goods are sold and St. Louis newspapers are circulated.

St. Louis, he said, needed a nonborrowing territory to balance the borrowing territory.

Secretary McAdoo questioned Watts as to the reasons for including Indianapolis and Springfield, Ill., in the proposed St. Louis reserve territory.

Watts said that St. Louis in this was no more grasping than Chicago, which desires to include East St. Louis in its proposed territory.

McAdoo asked how far north the dividing line across Illinois should be drawn. Watts said, in his opinion, it should pass through on near Springfield. He also believed Kansas City should be included in the St. Louis territory.

McAdoo asked whether Kansas City carries larger bank deposits in St. Louis or Chicago.

Balances About the Same.

Watts said the Kansas City balances were about the same in both cities, but that he believed that in a commercial way Kansas City does more business with St. Louis than with Chicago.

McAdoo asked for reasons why Nashville, Tenn., should be included in the St. Louis district. Watts said Nashville did a large portion of its business with St. Louis and New York and not with Chicago.

"Yesterday," said McAdoo, "St. Joseph, Mo., asked this committee to place it in the Chicago district," said McAdoo.

"Well," said Watts, "owing to the predominance of the packing industry there St. Joseph probably does most of its banking in Chicago."

Commercial Paper Suggestion.

McAdoo asked for suggestions as to a uniform system of handling commercial paper notes and bills of exchange. He requested that the St. Louis committee prepare a brief on this question and submit it to the committee.

He also asked that the St. Louis Committee file a brief stating its views on the exact relationship which should exist between the regional banks and the member banks with respect to clearings.

A. L. Shapleigh, president of the Business Men's League, gave statistics as to the size and commercial importance of St. Louis, in support of her claim to one of the regional reserve banks.

Watts said the Kansas City district ran about 50 miles east of that city, thence southwardly to the Arkansas line. He put the entire State of Arkansas in the St. Louis district.

He said the Kansas City district would take in part of the Nebraska district.

He said he thought it immaterial whether banks would go to one district or another, except where business in a district stood out distinctly for a certain place.

He said he thought the cotton belt district could be served efficaciously from a number of larger Southern cities, irrespective as to whether a regional bank was at St. Louis or Memphis. Watts said he thought Memphis would rather be attached to the St. Louis district if it did not get a regional bank of its own.

E. C. Simmons and Thomas H. West told of the importance of St. Louis as a distributing center.

Robert S. Brookings said no city could dispute with St. Louis her claim that she is the center of the reserve district of which she asks to be made the regional center.

D. R. Francis exhibited a map showing the centers of resources within circles drawn on radius of 100 miles, 200 miles and 500 miles of St. Louis. He said Springfield, Ill., being closer to St. Louis than to Chicago, both in distance and in a business sense, should be included in the St. Louis district.

Secretaries McAdoo and Houston will be entertained at dinner Wednesday night by Rolla Wells at his home, 1228 Lindell boulevard. Twenty-five persons will attend this dinner. Thursday night they will be guests of honor at the Business Men's League's annual banquet at the Planters Hotel. The attendance at the league dinner will be 600 or more.

Negro Lures Him Into Shed In Daylight and Later Is Seen Running Away.

Meyer Rabinovitz, 40 years old, of 1246 Biddle street, a junk dealer, was lured into a shed in the rear of a vacant house at 4483 Forest Park boulevard at 10:20 a. m. Wednesday and beaten on the head with a club by a negro who robbed him of $77.

Rabinovitz's cries aroused persons in the nighborhood, who saw the negro run west through the alley and disappear at Taylor avenue.

BREAKS LEG IN 40-FOOT FALL AT DELMAR GARDEN

Worker Caught by Superintendent of Wrecking Operations, Who Is Bruised.

James Robinson, a workman employed at wrecking the aero-auto concession at Delmar Garden, fell from the structure 40 feet to the ground Wednesday morning and broke his left leg.

His injuries probably would have been more severe had not Joseph Murphy, who was superintending the work, broken the force of the fall by catching Robinson with his arms. Fire Chief Kortkamp of University City took Robinson to the Frisco Hospital in an automobile. He is 25 years old, and lives in St. Louis. Murphy was bruised.

$50,000 GEM ROBBERY

American Diamond Merchants Lose Fortune in Berlin Cafe.

LONDON, Jan. 21.—The Daily Citizen has a Berlin dispatch which says two American diamond merchants have been robbed of bags containing gems worth $50,000.

The men were sitting in a fashionable cafe in Unter Den Linden, when, at a table near by, a well-dressed man suddenly struck his woman companion in the face. The Americans went to the woman's assistance. Her assailant grew abusive and the merchants boxed his ears. The police intervened, arresting the assailant, and when the Americans returned to their table they found their bags gone.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 21.—"If Charley Murphy got in front of Bill Sulzer today he would take the count in jig style," said Al Burdick, after a six-round go with the impeached Governor today. "I have been teaching Bill a few tricks," continued the boxing master. "He has become another 'white hope.' He reminds me of Fitzsimmons in his awful reach. He has a wallop like a piledriver and a sleep producer in each hand. It takes all I can do to hold him off."

Before her case was called, Mrs. Johnson sat with her husband and a woman friend in the rear of the courtroom. She frequently wiped away her tears with her handkerchief.

THREE OFFER TO FIGHT ON CAR; ARE ARRESTED

Two of Men Alleged to Have Flourished Pistols and Threatened Other Passengers.

Following a call from a Page car at Tenth street and Washington avenue shortly before midnight Tuesday, the police arrested three passengers, two of whom were armed with revolvers.

When the car, westbound, reached Tenth street the crew, Fred Shuhan, conductor, and his brother, Joseph Shuhan, the motorman, summoned patrolmen and requested the arrest of the three passengers, who, they said, had invited all the other occupants of the car to fight. One of the three jumped from the car and ran, but was caught a block away by a private watchman.

The car crew told the police the men boarded the conveyance at Broadway and immediately began challenging other passengers to a battle. Two of the fight-seekers drew revolvers and began flourishing them. Two of the men were taken to Central Station, where they said they were Roy Reynolds, 21 years old, of 1220 Leffingwell avenue, and Thomas Epers, 21, of "no settled abode." Reynolds had a loaded revolver and 32 extra rounds of ammunition in his pockets. The man who was captured by the watchman after a chase was taken to the Carr Street Station, where he said he was Lester Gibson, 23 years old, of 3712 North Eleventh street. A revolver was found in his coat pocket.

SPIRITS FOR RHEUMATISM

The use of spirits in the treatment of rheumatism has proved an innovation among the medical profession. When mixed with certain other ingredients and taken properly it is said to be an almost infallible cure for rheumatism and backache. Here is the formula: "From your druggist get one ounce of Toris compound (in original sealed package) and one ounce of syrup of Sarsaparilla compound. Take these two ingredients home and put them into a half pint of good whiskey. Shake the bottle and take a tablespoonful before each meal and at bedtime." Results come immediately. If your druggist does not have Toris compound in stock he will get it in a few hours from his wholesale house. Don't be influenced to take some patent medicine instead of this. Insist on having the genuine Toris compound in the original one-ounce sealed yellow package. Published by the Globe Pharmaceutical laboratories of Chicago.—ADV.

MAN, 80, SAYS HE KILLED WIFE TO END HER SUFFERING

Tapped Her on Head With Board After She Had Begged Him to Slay Her.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Jan. 20.—William Eberwein, 80 years old, in Criminal Court here today, told a dramatic story of how his wife, 15 years younger, had pleaded with him to kill her and how he committed the deed. Judge Walling fixed the crime at murder in the second degree and sentenced Eberwein to solitary confinement in the penitentiary for not less than seven years or more than fourteen.

Eberwein, who is a veteran of the Civil War, told the court his wife was an invalid and one day last October he found her lying at the bottom of a stairway down which she had fallen. He offered to have her sent to a hospital, but she would not go.

"'You do it, William,'" Eberwein declared she said.

"'Do what?' I said," the prisoner continued.

"'End it all for me. It's no sin when I'm suffering so.'

"I had a board in my hand. I looked at her and guessed it wouldn't be a sin.

"'Go on, William,' says she; 'go on.'"

"Then I tapped her on the head with the board and I tapped her again. She didn't moan much and once when I stopped she kind o' whispered: 'Go on, it won't be long.'

"So I kept on tapping and she got quiet."

WEALTHY MAN AND HIS WIFE BURN TO DEATH IN HOME

Robbers Reported to Have Murdered New Jersey Couple and Set Residence on Fire.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—Capt. and Mrs. Nicholas Shepherd were found late yesterday afternoon burned to death in the ruins of their home in Tuckerton, N. J.

The fire was discovered about 8 o'clock yesterday morning, but before the fire department arrived the big residence was burning from cellar to roof. Owing to extreme heat the authorities were unable to search for the bodies of Capt. Shepherd and his wife until the afternoon.

Following the finding of the bodies there were reports that Capt and Mrs. Shepherd had been murdered by robbers and their home set on fire to hide the crimes. It was said that two rough-looking men had been seen in the neighborhood while the house was burning. County Prosecutor Harry E. Newman was notified of these suspicions.

Capt. Shepherd was 76 years old and reputed to be the wealthiest man in that section of New Jersey, his interests having been appraised at $500,000 by the Tax Assessors.

MAN DEFIES POSSE FOR A WEEK, GIVES UP TO REPORTERS

New York Outlaw Is Taken to Hotel and Then to Jail Unknown to Sheriff.

MAYVILLE, N. Y., Jan. 21.—Edward Beardsley, the Chautauqua County outlaw, who, for more than a week, has defied the efforts of Sheriff Anderson to arrest him, gave himself up to a party of newspaper men early today, accompanied them to a hotel in this village, and later was locked up in jail.

Sheriff Anderson and his posse maintained their guard five hours after the "capture."

When "the papers in the case," which were drawn yesterday in accordance with Beardsley's conditions and which called for the outlaw's safe conduct to jail, Beardsley insisted on his wife's signature as a part of the contract. The papers were returned to the county jail, where Mrs. Beardsley is a prisoner. She signed and then Beardsley attached his signature.

Mrs. Edith Austin, grandmother of the children, arrived yesterday afternoon. She talked at length to her daughter. Then she was taken to the farm house in Summerdale, where she spent the night.

Beardsley has approximately $175 realized on the sale of his autographs, handshakes and such. He continued his commercial tactics yesterday. A score of visitors found their way out to Champlin's Hill through a fog so dense it was difficult to see the horses' heads from the seat of a buggy. They paid their money for a little conversation, a smile and an autograph. The Sheriff and his posse made no attempt to interfere.

In Mayville, yesterday looked like a circus day. There was a holiday spirit in the air, and such merrymaking as the county seat of Chautauqua had not known in years. Meanwhile Sheriff Anderson and 30 deputies were shivering in the hills, "guarding" and waiting on the man who, it is admitted could have escaped any time he wanted to during the past three days.

GEN. VILLA ORDERS 15,000 REBELS TO MEET AT TORREON

Concentration of Army Is First Step in Proposed Campaign to Capture Capital.

By Associated Press.

CHIHUAHUA, Mexico, Jan. 21.—Orders were issued by Francisco Villa today for a concentration of rebel forces along the railroad north of Torreon. The rebels scattered in the State of Durango and Coahuila and the garrison in Juarez were ordered to join those of Chihuahua, Jiminez and Santa Rosalia, with a view of preparing a formidable front in the projected rebel advance southward.

Evidences have multiplied that the Federals at Torreon are determined if possible to check the rebellion at that point. Torreon is now the northernmost Federal stronghold in the heart of the republic.

The Federals hold that if the revolutionary movement from the north is to be halted at all, it must be halted there, and that the loss of Torreon to the rebels would leave the way open for Villa's advance to Saltillo, Monterey, San Luis Potosi and cities near Mexico City.

Villa to Have 15,000 Men.

Consequently, according to reports received here, the Federals are drawing all their available soldiers toward Torreon in the hope of dealing a decisive blow to the rebels.

Gen. Villa said he was not inclined to believe the Federals would evacuate Torreon. He therefore ordered to be concentrated all rebels who might be spared from the surrounding country. Within 10 days, he said, his available army for the campaign would number 15,000 well-equipped soldiers. Gen. Villa himself expects to lead the campaign, but not until he has first visited Juarez, for which place he planned to leave today.

The rebels are already within striking distance of Torreon. They occupy Lerdo and Gomez Palacio, important suburbs.

Would Open Two Routes to Capital.

The overthrow of Torreon by the rebels would leave two routes open to Mexico City. One would be directly southward through Zacatecas and Aguas Calientes. The other would be eastward through Saltillo and Monterey and then southward through San Luis Potosi.

As an indication of his intention to head his troops and also as an instance of the summary manner in which he appoints important officials, Gen. Villa while preparing to take the train for Juarez turned to Gen. Manuel Chao in the State Palace and said:

"Gen. Chao, you are now Governor of the State of Chihuahua and I leave everything in your hands while I go at the head of my troops to dethrone the usurper of our liberties."

DON'T STAY GRAY! SAGE TEA WILL DARKEN YOUR HAIR JUST BEAUTIFULLY

A Mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur Prevents Dandruff and Falling Hair—Comb or Brush it Through the Hair.

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur no one can tell, because it's done so naturally; so evenly. It is also splendid to remove dandruff, cure itching scalp and stop falling hair.

Preparing this mixture, though, at home is a mussy and troublesome task. For about 50 cents a bottle you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use tonic called, "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." Some druggists put this mixture up themselves but make it too sticky, so insist you want "Wyeth's" then there will be no disappointment.

You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur" and draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. Do this at night and by morning all gray hair disappears and after another application darkened and more glossy and luxuriant than ever. You will also discover dandruff is gone and hair has stopped falling.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur and you'll look years younger. Inquiry shows all pharmacists in town here sell lots of it.—ADV.

What Is So Precious As a Healthy Baby?

Every Youngster Can Have Fine Digestion if Given a Good Baby Laxative.

In spite of the greatest personal care and the most intelligent attention to diet, babies and children will become constipated, and it is a fact that constipation and indigestion have wrecked many a young life. To start with a good digestive apparatus is to start life without handicap.

But, as we cannot all have perfect working bowels, we must do the next best thing and acquire them, or train them to become healthy. This can be done by the use of a laxative-tonic very highly recommended by a great many mothers. The remedy is called Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and has been on the market for two generations. It can be bought conveniently at any drug store, for fifty cents or one dollar a bottle, and those who are already convinced of its merits buy the dollar size.

Its mildness makes it the ideal medicine for children, and it is also very pleasant to the taste. It is sure in its effect, and genuinely harmless. Very little of it is required and its frequent use does not cause it to lose its effect, as is the case with so many other remedies.

Thousands can testify to its merits in constipation, indigestion, biliousness, sick headaches, etc., among them reliable people like Mrs. James R. Rouse of Marinette, Wis. Her little son Howard was 15 months old last April, but he was sick with bowel trouble from birth and suffered intensely. Since Mrs. Rouse has been giving him Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin all trouble has disappeared and the boy is becoming robust.

HOWARD ROUSE

Thousands keep Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin constantly in the house, for every member of the family can use it from infancy to old age. The users of Syrup Pepsin have learned to avoid cathartics, salts, mineral waters, pills and other harsh remedies, for they do but temporary good and are a shock to any delicate system.

Families wishing to try a free sample bottle can obtain it postpaid by addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 419 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. A postal card with your name and address on it will do.

WHY EXPERIMENT?

HERPICIDE, the First Preparation for Combating Dandruff Contagion, Has Proven Its Worth.

Life meet new creations and truths. Newbro's Herpicide, the first preparation in America to be compounded in harmony with the theory that dandruff is a contagious disease, was the subject of much ridicule. The theory of dandruff contagion was subjected to severe criticism, not to say antagonism, by many.

But what is the situation today? Truth has prevailed. The facts concerning the origin of dandruff are known. That it is a contagious disease is admitted.

The extraordinary success of Newbro's Herpicide, both in America and abroad, has caused practically all other scalp preparations to abandon their old claims and imitate those made for Herpicide. As there has seldom been any change made in the preparations, the sincerity of these claims may be doubted. But why give these other preparations a thought? Why experiment?

The point is this: "Success" is the thing that is always imitated. Herpicide is and has been imitated widely. Why be persuaded to buy an imitation when it is more sensible and in the end more satisfactory to buy the original? Remember, Newbro's Herpicide was positively the first and original preparation for combating dandruff as a contagious disease.

You can get a trial-size bottle of this well-known scalp prophylactic, also a booklet on the Care of the Hair by sending ten cents in postage or silver to The Herpicide Co., Dept. "S," Detroit, Mich.

Herpicide applications obtained at all the better barber shops and hairdressing parlors. Sold and Guaranteed everywhere. Two sizes—50 cents and $1.00. For sale at all drug and department stores.

LORD STRATHCONA, HIGH COMMISSIONER FOR CANADA, DIES

Once Resident Governor, Member of Manitoba Legislature and Dominion Parliament.

LONDON, Jan. 21.—Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal, High Commissioner for Canada, died at 1:35 o'clock this morning.

Lord Strathcona's life spanned nearly a century, and his active career a full three-quarters. "The best way to live to an old age," he explained when found at work at his desk in London on his ninety-third birthday, Aug. 6 last, "is by not thinking about age at all, but just going on doing your work."

From his eighteenth year, when, as Donald Smith, a sturdy Scot, he sailed for Canada, to his ninety-fourth year, which would have been completed next August, he lived up to his maxim of work.

His first years in Canada were those of an adventurous youth. The Hudson Bay Co. engaged him as a clerk, and by successive stages he grew to be head of the corporation, and he was its last resident governor. During this service, which was mainly in Labrador, he was threatened with snow blindness, and had to make a forced march of 500 miles through the snow to Montreal for an operation on his eyes. This is only one of many instances of his perseverance.

After 30 years in the eastern wilds, he became Resident Governor in Montreal, and later accepted the offer of leading Lord Wolseley's expedition to the Northwest. Later he bent his energies toward opening up the West, and he is credited with having pressed the Canadian Pacific Railway to completion across the continent. He also had political experience as a member of the Manitoba Legislature and the Dominion Parliament for many years. In 1896, 58 years after he had first landed in Canada, Lord Strathcona was sent to London as High Commissioner.

His last years in London were as full of work as were the days in Canada. From the vast fortune he accumulated, Lord Strathcona often dispensed large sums for educational and charitable purposes, and he also was a patron of many branches of sport.

CARNEGIE POSES FOR TALKING MOVING PICTURES

Delivers Address on "Gospel of Wealth" to Be Preserved for Posterity.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—Andrew Carnegie delivered his "Gospel of Wealth" address before the talking moving picture apparatus at Bedford Park, Bronx, yesterday, at the special request of Thomas Edison. This is in conjunction with the plan of Mr. Edison to preserve for posterity the recorded portrait and voice of famous men. Mr. Carnegie's pose yesterday was the first taken since that of the late Mayor Gaynor.

The address began as follows:

"This, then, is held to be the duty of the man of wealth: First, to set an example of modest, unostentatious living, shunning display; to provide moderately for the legitimate wants of those dependent upon him; and, after doing so, to consider all surplus revenues which come to him simply as trust funds, which he is strictly bound, as a matter of duty, to administer in the manner which, in his judgment, is best calculated to produce the most beneficial results for the country."

GIRL CLINGS TO CAR FENDER AND IS SAVED

Four-year-old Alice Swaney, who lives with her parents at 305 North Twenty-third street, saved her life by clinging to the fender of a Jefferson car which struck her as she tried to cross the tracks near Olive street.

Her injuries consisted chiefly of lacerations of the knees.

Her mother, a patient at Mullanphy Hospital, heard of her child's narrow escape and insisted on being discharged from the institution, that she might hurry home. Robert Swaney, 37 years old, the child's father, is a railroad worker.

Prisoner Admits Holdup.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 21.—Lloyd Carter, 26 years old, confessed yesterday, according to the local police, that he was one of a band of highwaymen who held up a resort in Omaha on the night of Jan. 15, killed Harry E. Nickell, a bank teller, and robbed frequenters of $8000 in diamonds and money.

Fire Damages Cooperage Plant.

Fire damaged the plant of the Charles Wunderlich Cooperage Co., 303 Monroe street, to the extent of $2000, shortly after 5 a. m., Wednesday. A heated steam pipe ignited some shavings and a blaze was spreading rapidly when Albert Folstrop of 2223 North Broadway, a passerby, sounded an alarm.

WALL STREET IS ENCOURAGED BY WILSON'S MESSAGE

Financiers Say It Marks New Era Between Government and "Big Business."

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—For the first time in the memory of Wall street, the financial district yesterday was completely in the dark as to the details of a presidential message until after the actual reading of it began in Congress.

As far back as the memory of the financial district runs, leading financiers and alert Wall street brokerage houses have had advance copies of messages, although these documents have been given out to news associations on pledges that their contents would not be divulged until delivery. Until yesterday, however, somebody invariably has violated this pledge. The result had been that the stock market always discounted the effect of the document.

For several days past newspapers and news agencies had been besieged by inquiries about yesterday's message. No one, however, could give authoritative information, for it was not delivered to any news agency until shortly before the President himself made it public.

The result was that the market stood stock still in the early part of the day.

Just before the clock on the Exchange floor pointed to 12.30 the news ticker buzzed and somebody shouted:

"The President's message is coming out!"

Traders stopped shouting and there was a rush to the tickers. News agencies sent the message out practically in full, and the brokers followed it word for word.

"It's bullish!" shouted one, and that was a signal for a resumption of trading on an active scale. In a few minutes general advances were scored. Until the end of the day the market retained firmness.

Message Pleases Financiers.

Throughout the financial district there was general satisfaction over the message, which was regarded as marking a new era in the relations between the Government and big business. Many prominent financiers showed great satisfaction. Here are the expressions of some of them:

George J. Gould: I feel encouraged. My attitude for a long time has been one of extreme conservatism. The sentiment is more cheerful and I believe that business will be better. I would much prefer to have the issuance of securities regulated by the Interstate Commerce Commission than by a large number of state commissions. I do not think the abolition of interlocking directorates will prove so troublesome or disturbing to the corporations as has been feared in some circles.

Daniel G. Reid, head of the Rock Island syndicate: Very reassuring.

Harriman & Co.: The message contains nothing that should alarm the investor. No legislation radical enough to injure business is suggested. The public is prepared for new laws with definite rules for doing business and for punishing individuals for attempts to do business unfairly. The reforms to be attempted will be comparatively easy.

John T. Keane, head of the Stock Exchange firm of Keane, Zayas & Potts: The message displays coolness, precision and excellent judgment. It shows the President is in touch with sentiment throughout the country. The suggestions made could come only from a masterly mind. The message undoubtedly foreshadows a new era of prosperity with a clearer and better understanding of the laws about which there has been so much doubt and confusion.

William C. Vanantwerp, governor of the Stock Exchange: I call the message constructive statesmanship, and, likewise, constructive morality. If I had a son just entering upon a business career under these new standards I should be happy. He would have what the rest of us have not had—a masterly constructive leadership at the nation's head and a constant incentive to high ideal attainment. The boys who begin in this way are fortunate, indeed.

Henry Clews: It is quite evident that there is a disposition on the part of the great business interests of the country to meet the President in a fair and square method of adjusting their business transactions. The temperate and conciliatory tone of the message is commendable. There is nothing drastic about it. I think that after the enactment of the new trust legislation President Wilson may well be content with the achievements of his party and administration and that the country at large will then have earned a needed rest (for a time at least) from any further reformative and corrective legislatin.

Morgan Hasn't Read It.

James Speyer: I have not had an opportunity to read the message yet, but from what I have been told it is evidently a very fine document.

J. P. Morgan: I have not had time to read the message yet, because I have been too busy, but if I had I would not discuss it.

Sternberger, Sinn & Co.: We consider the message of a constructive nature and one such as to inspire confidence.

William J. Wollman: The message is clearly constructive and business-like and will go far toward restoring confidence and helping the unemployed, as business men will be encouraged to undertake new business. It is very gratifying to see that Mr. Wilson realizes the railroad situation. Equitable treatment of the railroads is the most important subject at this time. It looks now as if they would be given full and unprejudiced consideration.

BILLS TO CARRY OUT PRESIDENT'S TRUST IDEAS TAKEN UP

House and Senate Committees Work on Five Measures Suggested in Message.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—Five bills to carry out the suggestions of President Wilson's message on trusts were being completed in Congress today.

The bills will embrace the following:

An interstate trade commission, with inquisitorial powers into corporations and authority to aid the courts and keep big business within the law.

Prohibition of interlocking directorates in interstate corporations, railroads and national banks.

Empowering the Interstate Commerce Commission to regulate the issuance of railroad stocks and bonds.

A Sherman law definition bill, which would define specifically what constitutes conspiracy in restraint of trade.

A general trade relations measure seeking to eliminate "cut-throat" competitive business, and which would provide punishment for individuals instead of business, and make it possible for firms or individuals injured by unlawful business restraint to avail themselves of findings against combinations and institute suits in equity for relief.

Revision of Bills Begun.

Following a conference last night at the White House, members of the House Judiciary and Senate Interstate Commerce Committees went to the capitol today with the program as outlined in mind, and revision of tentative drafts of measures already prepared was undertaken.

Senator Newlands, chairman of the committee which will have charge of the legislation in the Senate, and Chairman Clayton, Representatives Carlin and Floyd of the House Judiciary Subcommittee on Trust Legislation, were in the conference with the President.

Representative Adamson, chairman of the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, which will have jurisdiction over the bills relating to Government supervision of railroad securities and interstate trade commission, expects to confer with President Wilson today or tomorrow. There is already pending before his committee a railroad securities bill drawn by himself, which will form the basis for the administration measure.

A trade relations bill drafted by the House Judiciary Subcommittee and Senator Newlands, and shown to the President last night, may be introduced by Senator Newlands, and with other measures pending, turned over to the Adamson Committee to aid it in its work.

A meeting of the entire membership of the House Judiciary Committee has been called for tomorrow, when bills relating to trust subjects will be reviewed, and probably will be introduced the following day. Senator Newlands had another conference today with the President.

THOUGHT SHE COULD NOT LIVE

walk across the floor without holding on to something. I had nervous spells and my fingers would cramp and my face would draw, and I could—not speak, nor sleep to do any good, had no appetite, and everyone thought I would not live. Some one advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I had taken so much medicine and my doctor said he could do me no good so I told my husband he might get me a bottle and I would try it. By the time I had taken it I felt better. I continued its use, and now I am well and strong.

"I have always recommended your medicine ever since I was so wonderfully benefited by it and I hope this letter will be the means of saving some other poor woman from suffering."—Mrs. Martha Seavey, Box 1144, Unionville, Mo.

LEADERS OF BOTH PARTIES COMMEND PRESIDENT'S PLANS

Interstate Commerce Commissioners Pleased With Securities Regulation Proposal.

By Wire From the Washington Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—In commenting on the sentiments and recommendations enunciated by the President in his anti-trust message, Attorney-General McReynolds said: "It is a peculiarly brilliant and lucid message, setting forth the demands of the situation with wonderful force."

Acting Secretary of the Treasury Williams: "The President's message was a masterly paper, and showed that the chief executive has now as complete an understanding of the real workings of monopolistic corporations, interlocking directorates and holding companies as the men sometimes referred to as captains of industry, and who in the past have been the main beneficiaries of such devices.

"The suggestions which the President has offered for the purpose of remedying evils complained of are likely to receive the commendation of fair-minded and unprejudiced men everywhere, and by embodying these suggestions into our system of laws, Congress will be opening wider the door of opportunity and will stimulate new hope and confidence and fresh ambition among the multitude.

"I have never believed that the capacity for directing the political or financial destinies of this country was a special gift by Providence to the 100 or so men who, up to a short time ago, so largely dominated the business interests of this country, and whose influence in politics cannot be regarded as having been beneficial or even innocuous."

Commissioners Are Pleased.

Chairman Clark of the Interstate Commerce Commission: I am very glad that the President has adopted the suggestion in reports made by the Interstate Commerce Commission for many years regarding the regulation by that body of the issuance of stocks and bonds by railroad companies. We have been endeavoring to have this feature of railroad regulation made part of the law for many years, and now that we have the President behind us we hope to have such provision enacted into law.

Commissioner Harlan: I heartily agree with the President's utterances regarding the control of the issue of stocks and bonds on the part of railroads by the Interstate Commerce Commission. I believe that most of the railroad officials believe that this is the best way of solving the problem as between directors and stockholders. It seems to me to be a question which can easily be settled if such power is given to the commission.

Senator Newlands, chairman of the Committee on Interstate Commerce: "The message is both firm and moderate. It will appeal to the conscience and business sense of the country. We must go back to work now to carry out the suggestions of the President."

Senator Lodge: "I think President Wilson's message is a very able one. I think I agree with him as to the need of legislation on all the points covered, and if it is drawn in the spirit in which he professes to desire, I think that it will be beneficial. It all depends on how the President's recommendations are carrid out."

Senator Chamberlain: "President Wilson's message is along safe and sane lines. I have always advocated the punishment of the man who by violating the law makes business go wrong, and not the punishment by confiscation of business itself."

Will Not Alarm Business.

Senator Shafroth: "In his message the President calls attention to evils that we are familiar with. He urges their correction in a direct, practical way. His message is conservative and will not alarm business, and proper legislation will compel business to readjust itself to conform to the law. The President lets the country see that he is not vindictive, but that the reforms he believes must be put into effect will be enacted into law without endangering a single business enterprise."

Senator Bacon: "If the message is carried out in the spirit in which it is given it will be well."

Senator Walsh: "The message has brought the trust proposition down to the average man. It has clarified the subject which heretofore has been muddy. The message recommends remedies for interlocking directorates, definitions of the anti-trust law and the creation of a trade commission. But what is more, it is given in such a spirit that the business man feels that he has a friend in the President. There is no bluster in it. He does not call business men malefactors."

Senator Kern: "The message is temperate in tone, and the business interests of the country will be pleased with it."

Senator Kenyon: "I am particularly pleased with the section of the message in which the President urged the enactment of a law making guilt personal. I had advocated such legislation for years. The first bill I introduced in the Senate was to that effect. In my judgment this will solve the trust problem. A little mature reflection behind the bars will have a wonderful effect upon the individual convicted, and quite as wonderful upon the criminal yet to be arraigned. This worked in the case of the banking business. We have had far cleaner banking in this country since Morse and Walsh were sent to jail.

"I am not sure in my own mind about the industrial commission idea, however. The President was a little vague on that point. If his commission is a concession to these people, I should be sorry. Every other feature of the message was fine."

Fine, Says Senator Norris.

Senator Norris: "I cannot withhold my praise of the good features of the anti-trust message. As far as it went it was fine. It might have proceeded a little further, particularly in the applications of a fine for the violation of the law which would make monopoly unprofitable.

"I hold that if a section were added to the present law, for instance, authorizing the Court to collect from a dissolved corporation all the profits it had illegitimately made, the trust question would be solved. I believe this would have a greater effect on the industrial system than the conviction of a few officers and directors under the criminal section. We all know how hard it is to find a jury to send these men to jail."

Senator Swanson: "I think this message made a profound impression upon the House and Senate. The President indicated in clear-cut language just what he believed the country demanded of Congress and I cannot see how such an appeal, backed as it is by the sentiment of the people, can be withstood."

Senator Overman: "The message is clear cut and to the point. There is no threat in it to honest business but the danger signal is put up for the violator of the law. If President Wilson's idea can be carried out we will have an era of competition and straightforward business."

Senator Simmons: "This message, like all of the President's messages, is exceedingly direct in purpose, clear in statement, and forceful in presentation.

"The President leaves no room for doubt as to exactly what he wants. In the main his suggestions meet hearty response in Congress and the country. There is a vein of conservatism throughout the message and a manifest purpose to assure business that the Administration approaches the subject of business readjustment in a spirit of friendliness rather than hostility."

Speaker Clark: It was a very, very fine message.

Vice-President Marshall: The President spoke, as he does always, with terseness and clarity. While this message recommends radical reforms, it is couched in conservative terms.

Representative Underwood: I regard the President's message on trusts as a great, conservative state paper, and it points the way to progressive remedial legislation that will relieve the people of the United States from evil practices that have sometimes been carried on in the past, and at the same time, the tone of the message is such that it leaves no cause for alarm for the legitimate interests of the country.

Mann Favors the Program.

Minority Leader Mann: Of course, I am very much pleased with so much of the President's message as relates to the issuance of stocks and bonds by railroads. I put that proposition through the House once over the opposition of the Democrats and will be glad to support the President in it now.

"The Interstate Trade Commission is really an outgrowth of the creation of the Bureau of Corporations, which I had the honor first to suggest and put into law, and I have advocated increasing its powers. Other propositions of the President will require careful consideration, but his message goes very far toward favoring the powers of the general Government at the expense of the State governments and is the strongest nationalistic message ever sent to Congress. It will be a bitter pill to our Southern state-rights friends who have for years consistently opposed every proposition favored in the message, but I hope the Republicans will get behind the President once more on the propositions and help him enact them into law."

The President, after he had delivered his message to Congress, went to the Senate Office Building, accompanied by secret service men, to see the Alaska exhibit displayed there so that Senators can view it during the discussion of the Alaska railroad bill. The President was much pleased with the great variety of products shown.

OLD-TIME PIONEER SETTLER OF WEST TELLS SOME OF HER EXPERIENCES HERE

Mrs. Elizabeth Herchenreoder Gives Her Experience With Plant Juice.

Here is a statement from one of the old time settlers of the West, Mrs. Elizabeth Herchenreoder, who lives at 2426 Bernays avenue, St. Louis. Came west with her parents 70 years ago when she was a small child; they settled in Monroe county, Illinois, near the present town of Waterloo. The family is very well known throughout this section. Mrs. Herchenreodor says:

MRS. ELIZABETH HERCHENREODER.

"I have worked pretty hard all my life and have raised a family of nine children. I have been a great sufferer from rheumatism for a long time. The pain was most severe in my limbs and shoulders, and in my side, my kidneys also gave me a great deal of trouble and hurt me all the time, my whole system seamed to be undermined and I was extremely nervous. Since I began taking Plant Juice the improvement in my condition is really wonderful, my back does not hurt me any more and my rheumatic pains are all gone, and my nerves are much better. My daughter was also very nervous and run down, and she has been taking Plant Juice, too, and she is feeling so much better she is going to keep on taking it, as she is improving right along."

Plant Juice has established itself as the standard family remedy of the Middle West, and is to be found in almost every household. If you suffer from stomach, blood, liver or kidney troubles, try it. Sold at the Wolff-Wilson drug store. ADV.

RESOLVE TO ESCAPE THE CLUTCHES OF GRIP

Many Physicians Recommend Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey as a Reliable Remedy and Preventative.

At this season of the year when exposure to sudden and severe changes of weather is frequent, grip and pneumonia often attack the system quickly and relentlessly, especially if you are run down from worry, overwork or exposure.

For more than half a century Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey has been recognized as a wonderful remedy in the prevention of coughs, colds, grip, pneumonia, and all diseases of the respiratory organs. The secret of its marvelous success in relieving and preventing throat and lung troubles lies in the fact that it is one of the greatest strengtheners and health builders known to medicine. Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey not only checks the ravages of the disease itself, but helps the stomach to more perfectly digest and assimilate food in order that richer and purer blood may come from it, and regulates and governs the heart's action, so that circulation will be strong and powerful, carrying health and vigor to every organ of the body. Don't hesitate, buy a bottle today. Sold in sealed bottles only by most druggists, grocers and dealers, $1.00. To protect yourself against refilling we ask you to break the bottle when empty.

EATING MEAT REGULARLY CLOGS THE KIDNEYS, CAUSING PAINS IN THE BACK

Don't fail to flush your Kidneys occasionally with a tablespoonful of harmless fruit Salts to avoid danger.

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a teaspoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless, inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.—ADV.

FORMER TEACHER LEAVES HOSPITAL TO WED TEACHER

Miss Sarah Ten Broeck Reynolds Will Become Bride of William E. Most.

Miss Sarah Ten Broeck Reynolds, 24 years old, formerly instructor of art at Central and Soldan high schools, was taken from the Deaconess' Hospital Wednesday to her home, a block away, to be made ready for her marriage at 5 p. m. Thursday to William E. Most, 28, former instructor in mathematics at Soldan High. The ceremony will be at the residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Reynolds, 4240 West Belle place, and Father Francis Gilfillan will officiate.

Miss Reynolds, who had been in the hospital since Christmas eve, recuperating from an operation for appendicitis, was able to walk to the automobile of her physician, Dr. W. E. Jones, and also walked from the machine into her home.

Four hours after the wedding Most will take a train for Walla Walla, Wash., where he must at once take up his position as instructor in mathematics and commercial subjects. It is thought his bride will be strong enough to follow in a week or so.

Miss Reynolds held out three years against giving up her art work in the schools. She met Most three years ago, when both were Soldan High instructors, and it was said to have been love at first sight.

"I am an old man—and many of my troubles never happened."—ELBERT HUBBARD

THE white hair and wrinkled faces of our busy men and women tell of doubt, fear and anxiety—more than disease or age. Worry plays havoc with the nervous system—so that digestion is ruined and sleep banished. What oil is to the friction of the delicate parts of an engine—is to the delicate organs of the body. It's a tonic and body builder—because it stimulates the liver to vigorous action, assists the stomach to assimilate food—thus enriching the blood, and the nerves and heart in turn are fed on pure rich blood. Neuralgia "is the cry of starved nerves for food." For forty years "Golden Medical Discovery" in liquid form has given great satisfaction as a tonic and blood maker.

Now it can be obtained in tablet form—from dealers in medicine or send 50 one-cent stamps for trial box. Write R. V. Pierce, Buffalo.

DECLARES BRIDE TOLD HIM TO 'GO TO THUNDER'

Edward J. B. Sourger Seeks Aid in Finding Telephone Operator He Says He Wed.

Edward J. B. Sourger, 35 years old, living at 2240 Mullanphy street, asked the police Wednesday to aid him in finding his wife, who left him a few minutes after he married her, Jan. 7, and whom he has not seen since. Sourger says his wife was Miss Cora V. Pierce, 25 years old, formerly a Bell telephone operator at the Lindell Exchange, and living at 4398 Gibson avenue.

He told the police that five months ago his home in Walnut Park was destroyed by fire, and that his wife and child were burned to death. In January, he said, he became lonesome, and placed an ad in a paper. Sourger says Miss Pierce replied, and for three days he courted her by mail. On Jan. 7, he told Phillips, he met Miss Pierce downtown, bought a wedding ring, procured a marriage license, and was married by Justice of the Peace Chauncey Kruger.

As Sourger and his bride left the Justice's office, he says, his wife handed him the wedding ring, and told him to "go to thunder," explaining she had married him just for a joke.

JAPAN DISSATISFIED WITH ALIEN LAND REPLY

Foreign Minister Tells Parliament Other Proposals Must Be Made to the United States.

TOKIO, Jan. 21.—Japan regards as unsatisfactory the replies made by the United States to her protests in connection with the California alien land ownership legislation, according to a statement made today by Baron Nobukai Makino, the Japanese Foreign Minister, in a lengthy summary of the Japanese-American negotiations given in his annual address to Parliament.

"Japan recognizes," he said, "the necessity of elaborating other plans for the solution of the question. The nature of these plans I am as yet unable to report."

Baron Makino's declaration that "no answer whatever" had been made by the United States to Japan's third protest presented in August, was the signal for an attack on the Government by several members of the opposition, who alleged that too much reliance had been placed on the good will of America.

BURLESQUE PARADE AT WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY

St. Fatima's day, which comes just before the midwinter examinations at Washington University, was observed by students at noon Wednesday with a burlesque parade, in which four bare-legged youths impersonated the "royal harem" and other functionaries, such as the royal bottle bearer, royal cuspidor bearer and royal can rusher, were in line. Several hundred spectators, included girl students, professors and others, viewed the antics.

Teddy Maenner was King and Joe Senne Queen, and Harry Payne and Percy Ramsey were elected to fill those offices next year.

KILLIFER'S "JUMP" BACK TO QUAKERS ROUSES FEDERALS

"Outlaws" Declare They'll Not Respect Contracts if Philadelphia Club Holds Catcher They Previously Signed.

CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—The Federal League today notified the powers of organized baseball that their signing of players already under contract with the Federal will be fought in and out of the civil courts.

This ultimatum was in the form of a telegram which President Gilmore of the Federal League sent to President Baker of the Philadelphia Nationals, declaring he would "protect" the contracts signed by A. D. Brennan and Will Killifer.

The telegram read:

"We hereby officially notify you that Ad Brennan and William Killifer have signed contracts with Chicago Federals and have received advance money. Both our players and their contracts will be protected."

So far the Federal League claims not to have tried to sign a player already under contract with a club of another league. It has been working on the theory that a player's contract would hold good in a civil court, though it has not respected the reserve clause. Should the Philadelphia Nationals sign Killifer and Brennan and a civil court uphold their "jumping," the Federal contracts, the decision, Federal officials said, would start a free-for-all campaign for big league players already signed.

The Players' Fraternity will not retain on its membership rolls anyone who breaks a contract, according to Otto Knabe, manager of the Baltimore Federals, who arrived here today.

This and the understanding that the American League will not tamper with signed players is believed to indicate contracts will be generally respected.

Knabe Signs Eight "Stars."

Knabe announced he had eight "big league" players under contract for his Baltimore team. His infield and outfield he said were practically complete, but he admitted he needed pitchers.

Mordecai Brown, manager of the St. Louis Federals, also reached town today.

Among the ballplayers who called at Federal headquarters was Ed Sweeney, battery mate of Russell Ford, who has signed with the Federals. Whether or not Sweeney had signed was not given out. Earl Gardner, a former New York and Cleveland American, who was with Toledo last year, also appeared.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 21.—Bill Killefer, "jumper" to the Feds, has signed a three-year contract with the Quakers.

President Baker's announcement was not made until after he had been apprised that the Federal League had warned the major leagues to keep their hands off players signed up by the new organization.

Mr. Baker's statement is as follows:

"Killifer signed his contract for three years with the Philadelphia National League club yesterday evening, having consulted his lawyer and also his father, who is a Probate Judge in Michigan. He was advised that the Lajoie decision covered his case exactly, and that the Philadelphia National League club had prior claim to his services, and when this was pointed out to him without any further consideration, he signed his contract."

"My opinion is that if all the National League players who contemplate signing with the Federal League—or have already signed—will examine the exact meaning of their contracts, the little old joker will be found nestling away there in a comfortable position.

"We already have agreements with Becker, Seaton, Brown, Cravath and Rixey and their contracts will be executed and received in a day or two.

"Sherwood Magee signed his contract last night and we also have contracts with Ireland and Jacobs and expect signed contracts from all the others. They will be dropping in every day from now on."

President Baker, in a talk after he issued his statement, said the Lajoie decision was the strongest argument the National League had regarding contracts.

Killefer, Reported a "Jumper," Hops Back In Big League Band Wagon

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 21.—William Killefer, the catcher, who was reported to have signed with the Federals, last night signed a three-year contract with the Philadelphia National League Club, according to a statement given out this afternoon by President Baker of the local organization.

Big Leagues Will Fight

CINCINNATI, Jan. 21.—Chairman August Herrmann of the National Baseball Commission today said that organized baseball will protect its contracts in and out of the civil courts.

"Organized baseball," said Mr. Herrmann, "has always recognized contracts and will continue to do so, but when contracts held by the clubs of organized baseball are assailed by the Federal League or anyone else, that party or parties may expect organized baseball to make every endeavor to protect its contracts in and out of every civil court if necessary."

Mr. Herrmann's statement was made in commenting on the telegram sent by President Gilmore of the Federal League to President Baker of the Philadelphia (National League) team.

"In so far," he continued, "as organized baseball is concerned, there is no worry on our part whatever about the Federal League, Mr. Gilmore or any of his associates. We realize that we have certain contractual rights to our players and these rights we propose to protect at the proper time regardless of what the Federal League or any other league may say or do.

"In this connection I may add that wherever the Federal League has established a legal right to any ballplayers there will be no interference on the part of those connected with organized baseball."

Sheckard Seeks a Job.

CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—American Association magnates began arriving today for their scheduled meeting, to take place here tomorrow. Among those who appeared early were G. B. Wild and C. W. Somers, representing Toledo; Ray W. Meehan, St. Paul; O. H. Wathen and Thomas N. Barger, Louisville; George Tebeau, Kansas City; E. M. Schoenborn and Robert Quinn, Columbus.

The selection of a schedule committee is the principal business on the program.

James Sheckard, formerly of Brooklyn, and late of the Chicago Cubs, and said to be in a receptive mood with reference to the managership of the Toledo team was among those at the meeting.

Bedient Declines Fed Offer.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., Jan. 21.—Although he said he had received a flattering financial offer from the Buffalo Federal League baseball club, Hugh Bedient today announced his decision to sign up again with the Boston American League team.

Clyde Wares Signs.

It was announced at American League headquarters Wednesday morning that Clyde Wares, the clever infielder who was "up" last season in the spring, had been signed by the Browns. Wares showed improvement in his infield work while with the Montgomery club last season.

The management also announced that Walker's contract, signed Tuesday, was for three years.

FIFTY-YARD DASH ATTRACTS STARS TO ARMORY MEET

Draws Biggest Entry of Events in First Indoor Contests.

Local field and track performers will have a chance to show at tonight's M. A. C. indoor meet. The affair is to be of the handicap variety, and will be held at the Armory Hall. The event is the first of a series which are to be held through the winter, preparatory to the M. A. C. relay carnival, scheduled for a later date in the season.

Judging from the large number of entries received tonight's contests should be successful, two universities, six athletic clubs, the First Regiment, Police Department and the local high schools having entered. Washington University athletes will run unattached. The following organizations will participate: Missouri A. C., Columbian A. C., Concordia A. C., Hands A. C., Raymond A. C., Y. M. C. A. and Christian Brothers' College A. A.

The 15 events on the program have drawn 146 individual entries. The 50-yard dash heads the list with 25 contestants.

All of the local bright lights are booked to show, insuring some lively competition in nearly all of the events. Willett, Probst and Pottoff should make the 50-yard dash an attractive event, as all three have displayed considerable merit. This trio, together with Irwin Biel, will also lead the other contestants a merry chase in the 300-yard run. Askainan, Biel and Bantle will have things pretty much to themselves in the 600 unless they are handicapped too much.

The thousand-yard run has quite a few entries, and will undoubtedly be a feature.

The 45-yard hurdles should be the classiest event of the meet, as all of the entries are well known in local circles. Harry Kiener and Joern are the stars of the entry, while Kinder and Cook are tipped off as dark horses.

Vassar of M. A. C. and Modisette are the chief contenders in the high jump.

Other events are the shot put, one-mile walk and numerous relays.

The junior part of the meet will be furnished by the high schools, and should prove quite interesting, as usual.

Individual winners will receive trophies in the form of cups and medals. The school, club and individual getting the greatest number of points will also be rewarded.

M. A. C. Paddlers Hold Meet in Preparation for C. A. A. Swimmers

The bi-monthly swimming meet at the M. A. C. Thursday evening will be a tryout for local boys who are to antagonize the representatives of the Chicago A. A., who come here Feb. 7. Coach Whitaker has arranged three handicap events—the 100, 220 and 200 yard breast stroke—and will follow this with a tryout for his relay team.

The C. A. A. squad has such stars as Kenneth Huzagh in the 100 and Ray White in the relay, not to mention Frank Bornaman and George Gaidzik in the fancy diving. To beat them, the local squad will have to be at its best. Whitaker probably will use the same relay team—Murphy, Heath, Stuerman and Laubis—against the C. A. A. that he sent against Illinois U. The cherry diamond team won from the university men.

BENSON PLAYS MORIN AT THREE CUSHIONS TONIGHT

What promises to be the best match of three cushions played here this season will be put on at the Rex Wednesday evening, when Frank Benson, the local representative, tackles Charles Morin of Chicago in the Interstate Three-cushion League. Benson, although he has lost four games, still is in the running and a victory over Morin will place him up among the leaders.

Morin defeated Harry Cooler of Indianapolis, 50—44, Tuesday evening.

WRAY'S COLUMN

SPORT SPORT SPORT SPORT

Federals Still Breathing.

THE Federal League is still breathing, panting heavily, one might say, despite the pronunciamento of Signores C. Webbo Murphy and Byronio B. Johnson of the organized baseball forces. The Federals still occupy the position of advantage in Chicago, in spite of a desperate effort to dislodge them there.

The reason for the confidence of the big leaguers that the Chicago insurrectos of the baseball world would be driven out and the backbone of the league thus broken, appears now to have rested less on the purchase of the Browns by Weeghman and Walker than on the forcing out of the Chicago Feds from the park they had chosen.

A strip of ground 16 feet wide caused all the trouble, as the organized ball forces apparently had obtained an option on it, threatening to drive the Chicago club out of a home. With Chicago out, the League would have lacked a backbone and have fallen—that apparently was the theory.

Weeghman to the Rescue!

TODAY, however, the Federals bob up serenely in possession of the strip, through some feat of legerdemain, thus foiling the villain. It was announced today that Weeghman and Walker had paid over $40,000 to gain unqualified possession of the debatable ground, assuring a Chicago foothold.

A Trick to Sting the Feds.

A BIG portion of the groundless reports coming out of Chicago Saturday, based largely on wind, circulated by agents or Organized Baseball with the evident purpose of scaring off unsigned players from joining the outlaws. In this the trick succeeded admirably, for apparently the major leaguers are returning to the fold in clouds, while the recent signers of Federal League contracts can be counted on one hand.

Federals Still Shaky.

Despite the fact that the "outlaws" have weathered the storm, there is little doubt they are still shaky; and work on parks and grandstands is not going ahead as it should, at this season. If the Federals open big league plants in ship-shape by the start of the schedule and exhibit big league teams, they will swell the list of the world's seven wonders.

Roberts Advanced Too Soon?

THE defeat of Stanley Roberts Tuesday night, caused a lot of disappointment among those who have watched the clever, clean work of this little Welsh fighter. Roberts was doing nicely for a lad who had had but four fights in this country, and almost none of regular status in Wales, whence he came. In fact, Roberts' sole record was made right here in St. Louis in the five battles he has fought in this city, winding up in his defeat last night.

Clarke Was Overweight.

ROBERTS might have survived a conflict with the tough Clarke, had he been given a little more experience against body fighters of Clarke's type.

At that, Roberts was really opposing a different division scrapper than himself. He weighed 121 pounds himself, and can fight at 118; whereas his more rugged opponent, who was under forfeit to do 122, could not budge the scales at 124, and probably weighed 1[illegible] pounds.

He forfeited, of course, but this permitted him to come in strong against Roberts.

The little lad from Wales is by no means a dead letter, however. Being a legitimate feather, where Clarke is not, he stands right where he did before. With a little more schooling he is still in line to meet the good ones. A match with Benny McGovern would still be interesting.

NELL: Let's get married. I'll get the diamond engagement ring at Loftis Bros. & Co., 2d floor, 308 N. Sixth st., on credit.

Clarke, Overweight, Stops Stanley Roberts in Fourth

Loser Is Better Boxer

Welshman's Superior Cleverness of No Avail Against Strength and Punching Power of Pittsburg Fighter, Who Puts Over Solar Plexus Punch.

By Harry S. Sharpe,

Referee for the Future City A. C. and the Post-Dispatch Boxing Authority

JOE CLARKE of Wilkesbarre, Pa., lowered the colors of Stanley Roberts, the brilliant featherweight boxer from Wales, by scoring a knockout last night at the Future City Athletic Club. Near the end of the fourth round Clarke moved in close to his opponent and, displaying far more speed than he had up to this time, he punched away with right and left hand to Roberts' stomach until the little Welshman collapsed and sank to the mat, where he lay inert.

Two seconds after Roberts went down the gong sounded an ending of the round and handlers were quick to render aid to the fallen boxer. However, their efforts were unavailing and when the gong sounded for the fifth round to begin Roberts was unable to respond to the call of time.

It was fully five minutes after the bout was declared at an end that Roberts revived sufficiently to realize that he had been defeated.

His first question when collecting his thought was: "Are they ready to go on?" When told that the bout was over and that he had been defeated, he was crestfallen, but made no complaint, simply remarking that Clarke had hit some awfully hard punches. He imagined, however, that uppercuts to the chin had put him away, and the reason for this probably lies in the fact that just previous to the time Clarke was able to land his punches to the stomach he had succeeded in reaching Roberts' chin with two uppercuts that had considerable force to them.

Roberts' Body Punished.

Clarke landed at least half a dozen punches with all his strength to Roberts' stomach in the final mixup, and probably many spectators are wondering why Roberts made no apparent effort to get away from them, but stood with his hands up sending over light punches to Clarke's head and face that had little or no effect.

In my opinion, the reason Roberts stood his ground and did not step out of danger, is that he could not do so after receiving the first two punches, which were exceptionally hard, and deprived him of full muscular control.

Hard punches followed in quick succession until he was absolutely helpless and he sank to the floor.

The first of this batch of punches was delivered with the right hand, and I saw Roberts' mouth fly open, then his jaws close with a snap and his lips were tightly compressed. I knew then that Clarke had reached the solar plexus nerve center and that Roberts was hurt, much in the same manner that Jim Corbett suffered when he was defeated for the championship by Bob Fitzsimmons at Carson City, Nev.

Another punch which, in my opinion, was conducive to defeat was received by Roberts in the third round. It was a powerful right-hand punch delivered by Clarke to the left side, just below the short rib, and I know this hurt, and it was seconds afterwards before Roberts could catch his wind. He kept on boxing, however, and moved quickly about the mat to keep out of danger until he could recover.

Up to the time Roberts went down in the fourth round he had scored many times and had a big margin of points to his credit, while Clarke had landed but few blows.

However, those that the Pennsylvania boy did land were hard, and it is probable that all of them hurt. He made no pretense at an attempt to outbox Roberts, but covered fairly well and watched for opportunities to get in close and then let fly with right and left aimed at head and body. Frequently Roberts made Clarke look quite foolish by clever footwork, easily stepping out of range, and Clarke's blows swished through the air. Once in a while Roberts exchanged swings and punches with his sturdy opponent, despite the frantic appeals of his seconds not to do so, and on these occasions he invariably got the worst of it because his blows did not have nearly the force of those sent in by Clarke.

Harry Sharpe's Decisions.

JOE CLARKE of Wilkesbarre, Pa., vs. Stanley Roberts of England, 8 rounds, 122 pounds, at 3 p. m.—Clarke the winner by a knockout; Roberts unable to respond to the call of "Time" beginning the fifth round.

DALE GARDNER of Los Angeles, Cal., vs. "Battling" Bahr of Shawneetown, Ill., 8 rounds, 135 pounds—Gardner the winner; Bahr disqualified in second round for fouling.

GEORGE BURKE vs. "Red" O'Malley, both of St. Louis, Mo., 8 rounds, 126 pounds—Burke the winner on points.

"YOUNG" FOLEY vs. Harry Jones, both of St. Louis; 6 rounds, 115 pounds—Foley the winner on points.

Brilliant Boxing Exhibition Goes for Nothing Against Clarke's Punch

ROBERTS gave a brilliant exhibition of boxing, landing straight, clean punches and uppercuts with ease because of his speed and splendid judgment of distance. He stepped in and out and sidestepped with graceful cleverness and often smothered punches that Clarke seemed about to let go by stepping in so close that the Pennsylvania boy's arms were blocked without space in which to strike.

Clarke was very cool under fire, moving along in slow but determined manner, never changing his style from start to finish, except that when an opportunity came to hit and he judged himself to be in distance, he showed surprising speed and strength.

At weighing-in time, 3 o'clock in the afternoon, Clarke was found to be two and a half pounds over the 122 agreed upon, while Roberts was one pound under. This caused a wrangle, but a compromise was finally reached when Andy Hollweg, manager for Clarke, agreed to forfeit $50.

The boys were very fair during the bout, no roughing or fouling being attempted by either, and Clarke afterwards said he had no complaint to make of the rules, as they seemed the same he had been accustomed to box under in the East.

Dr. R. A. Walker was called to Roberts' dressing room after the bout and found that the little Welshman had broken the forefinger of his left hand. Roberts thinks this happened in the second round.

No, the Browns are not for sale—they're not even for rent.

Heine Zimmerman signed a three-year contract with the Cubs, thereby giving the Feds the biggest boost had yet.

JAP IRON MAN TO BOX 'JACK' DILLON AT 'MOOSE' CLUB

Young Togo, With Eyes Restored, Takes on Tough Customer Tonight.

Young Togo, about the toughest bit of human machinery ever seen in the ring, will oppose Young Jack Dillon in an eight-round bout at the Moose Gymnasium, here tonight. Dillon is a rugged little scrapper who has met some good men of his class and bested them, too. He is fairly clever and owns a punch.

Togo is the Japanese iron man, who has been doing wonderful stunts in the line of taking beatings from men of superior weight. He wagered Bat Nelson that he could not stop him in six rounds, and he was conceding Nelson about 15 pounds weight, at the time. Nelson, although he was not then the wreck he now is, could not stop the little yellow man.

Togo's eyes, until recently, have given him great trouble. An operation has restored them and he is so improved that he has hopes of a championship nature.

The complete Moose card follows:

Main Event—Young Togo, Japan, vs. Young Jack Dillon, Indianapolis, eight rounds, 122 pounds.

Semi-final—Jack Manders, Collinsville, vs. George Burke, St. Louis, 122 pounds, eight rounds.

Preliminary—Sid Whiting, Memphis, vs. Jimmy Kinney, St. Louis, 116 pounds, four rounds.

I. L. BASKET BALL TEAMS ARE IDLE THIS WEEK

Interscholastic basket ball fives will receive another week lay-off, owing to the quarterly examinations which are being held. The schedule will be resumed Jan. 31, when Soldan meets Central and McKinley clashes with Yeatman. All four quintets intend to use the vacation to good advantage by practicing daily.

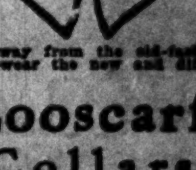

Last Saturday's games, which terminated the first half of the schedule, found the teams in the following positions: McKinley, Central, Soldan and Yeatman. The race this season is closer than it has been for several years and is inciting a great deal of interest in prep circles.

NEW SEMI-PRO LEAGUE TO HAVE EIGHT TEAMS

An eight-club league, with four teams already enlisted, will be arranged at a meeting to be held at the Missouri Athletic Club, Jan. 26. Preliminary steps were taken last night at a meeting held at a downtown restaurant. Representatives of the Wabadas, the Alton Blues, the Belleville Maroons and the Miller Juniors decided on Jan. 26 as the date on which permanent organization would be effected.

Two of these clubs are leading the amateur ranks, to-wit, the Wabadas and the Miller Juniors. Mike Keeney Jr. was named temporary secretary and will receive applications from clubs desiring to join the new league.

How You May Throw Away Your Glasses

The statement is made that thousands wear eyeglasses who do not really need them. If you are one of these unfortunates, then these glasses may be ruining your eyes instead of helping them. Thousands who wear these "windows" may prove for themselves that they can dispense with glasses if they will get the following prescription filled at once: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Optona; fill a two-ounce bottle with warm water and drop in one Optona tablet. With this harmless liquid solution bathe the eyes two to four times daily, and you are likely to be astonished at the results right from the start. Many who have been told that they have astigmatism, eye-strain, cataract, sore eyelids, weak eyes, conjunctivitis and other eye disorders, report wonderful benefits from the use of this prescription. Get this prescription filled and use it; you may so strengthen your eyes that glasses will not be necessary. Thousands who are blind, or nearly so, or who wear glasses would have never required them if they had cared for their eyes in time. Save your eyes before it is too late! Do not become one of these victims of neglect. Eyeglasses are only like crutches and every few years they must be changed to fit the ever-increasing weakened condition, so better see if you can, like many others, get clear, healthy, strong magnetic eyes through the prescription here given.—ADVERTISEMENT.

EAST SIDE EDITOR INDICTED FOR LIBEL OF STATE ATTORNEY

Sewell M. Johnson Is Charged With Criminal Offense Against Charles Webb.

CONSPIRACY WAS ALLEGED

Statement Printed in The Sun Involved Official in Missing City Book Scandal.

An indictment was returned Wednesday by the St. Clair County grand jury at Belleville against Sewell M. Johnson, publisher and editor of the East St. Louis Sun, charging him with criminal libel against State's Attorney Charles Webb, by publishing a statement that Webb had tried to employ the Burns Detective Agency to steal records from the office of the East St. Louis City Comptroller.

The statement was published in the Sun on Nov. 7, 1913. Under the heading, "Light on Missing City Books Mystery," the Sun printed a story that Webb and Curtis Betts, a Post-Dispatch reporter, had entered into a conspiracy to have the detective agency steal the books while Comptroller William R. Rodenberger was out of the city.

The books, six large bound volumes, had disappeared while Rodenberger was at Kampsville, Ill., on a fishing trip. Webb had demanded warrants and vouchers in Rodenberger's possession for the scrutiny of the grand jury, and Rodenberger had refused to give them up, taking the position that he was the legal custodian of them and did not want to take the responsibility of letting them ou of his possession.

Mayor Chamberlin had given Webb an order on Rodenberger for the warrants and vouchers. Rodenberger persisted in his refusal to give them up and Chamberlin removed him from office. Webb had the grand jury issue a subpena duces tecum for the warrants and vouchers and they were taken to Belleville and turned over to the grand jury by W. W. Kimball, Rodenberger's successor.

The City Council had, some time before, ordered that these vouchers and warrants be destroyed, but they were in use for checking up purposes and their destruction had been delayed. When this was brought to the attention of Mayor Chamberlin he promised that they should not be destroyed, but Webb was afraid that something might happen to them anyway and was not content until he obtained possession of them.

It had not occurred to Webb that there was any danger of the large record books being stolen or destroyed. Following the disappearance of these books an investigation resulted in the indictment of Rodenberger on the charge of embezzling them.

When Johnson learned that an indictment had been returned against him and a capias issued, he went to the office of Sheriff Mulconnery in East St. Louis and accepted service and was released on $1000 bond. He declined to discuss the indictment.

'SQUEALER' SLAIN AFTER GANGSTER IS CONVICTED

New York Gunmen Shoot and Kill Man Whom They Denounce as "Dopey Benny's Betrayer.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—Murder followed the conviction of "Dopey Benny" Fein, a notorious gang leader, for an attack on Police Sergeant Patrick Sheridan, early today. Five other gunmen in a Bowery saloon, known as the "Tub of Blood," shot and killed Thomas Murphy, after denouncing him as a "squealer."

A man known as "Gyp the Blood" since the original gangster of that name was sent to Sing Sing, is said by the police to have been the slayer of Murphy.

"You squealed and sent him up the river," the gangster said as he shot three bullets into Murphy. Gyp and four other men vanished from the place. The police found two men and two women in the groggery when they burst through the door. They declared they had no part in the killing, but all were charged with homicide.

It took a jury in Judge Malone's General Sessions Court just 45 minutes to convict "Dopey Benny." The maximum sentence for the offense is five years in the penitentiary.

Fein's spirit was not broken by his conviction. As he was being led from the courtroom he leaned over toward Sergt. Sheridan and whispered sharply, "I'll get you yet."

PROFESSOR SUING A BARONESS BEAT MONTE CARLO BANK

Dr. Appleby, Formerly of Minnesota U., Says His System Yielded $50,000 in Year.

HE WANTED TO WED HER

Her Sudden Illness Causes Delay in Hearing of $20,000 Action Over Pearl Necklace

LONDON, Jan. 21.—The sudden illness of Baroness May de Pallandt, formerly Marie Dugas of Chicago, caused an indefinite adjournment today of the hearing of the suit brought against her by Dr. Ernest Villiers Appleby, formerly lecturer at the University of Minnesota, for the recovery of $20,000.

On the reassembling of the King's Bench Court this morning, counsel for the Baroness announced that she had suffered a collapse through heart trouble and had been taken to a sanitarium for treatment. The Judge thereupon postponed the hearing.

The suit over payment for a pearl necklace between the two Americans, Dr. Appleby, the son of former Archdeacon Appleby of St. Paul, Minn., and the Baroness, promises to put on public record their relations for several seasons when they were conspicuous visitors at various resorts in Europe.

The story involves a highly attractive and stylish woman, whose vanities ran to costly jewelry, and a man who began life as a student and applied his talents to working out a system to beat the bank in Monte Carlo. He said that the system yielded him $50,000 a year so long as he chose to play it.

While the infatuation lasted there was no pretense of accounts between the two but when it ceased in 1910 and bills were rendered to Appleby for $20,000 by Jeweler Herzog of the Rue de la Paix, Paris, to clear a balance on a $65,000 necklace, payment for which had been guaranteed by Appleby, he recalled that the Baroness had promised to pay and that his guarantee was merely a friendly act to enable her to obtain possession of the gems. He then sued her for that sum.

Calls Necklace a Gift.

Her defense is that the necklace was a gift from Appleby to her in consideration of their life together and thus his claim has no validity in law. Their relations, as divulged in court, began in 1903, at a chance meeting on a train between Chicago and New York. She dropped her handbag. He picked it up and restored it to her and they instantly became friends. Both considered themselves free agents.

Two years previously she had parted from the Baron de Pallandt, a Dutch nobleman whom she had married in 1893. Appleby, having just become a widower by the death of a rich wife, decided to quit the University of Minnesota, where he had lectured on chemistry and had taught otology, and try a life of leisure. The Baroness and the professor were then in the early thirties. The romance begun on the train bore them together to Europe, where life for them was a round of continuous gayety for six years. The Baroness then made a visit to her home in Michigan, then returned to Appleby. After another year, in which their relations appear to have been not quite devoted, but which covered the period of the necklace purchase, they parted for good.

Wanted to Marry Her.

Testimony yesterday showed such strong infatuation on Appleby's side that he would have been glad to marry the Baroness, although the annuity of $10,000 which his wife had devised to him was to last only while he remained single. The Baroness was not so eager for a marriage and did not consent. In order to make the way financially clear for him to marry, Appleby worked a deal with his wife's relatives, in which he accepted $140,000 cash in lieu of all future annuity.

Out of this sum he settled on the Baroness $3750 a year and passed over to her a house at Maidenhead. She is now meeting his suit for $20,000 with a counter claim for $17,500, for arrears in settlement payments and for a deed to the house. His reply to these claims is that he agreed to the settlement and to the house only to hush her threats to leave him for a rival in China or another in New York. Appleby said in court that there was still another rival in the Riviera.

Won't Explain His System.

Asked concerning his winnings in Monte Carlo, Appleby said he did not gamble, but had merely followed a sure system of his own invention. So, whenever he needed money he knew that the bank would furnish it to him. He said his needs were tolerably frequent, considering the jewelry the Baroness required for her happiness. King's Counsel McCall tried to induce him to explain the system to the Court, but Appleby said it was his secret.

"I simply exchanged moneys at the tables and made money every year by my investments there," was as far as he would explain. "One year I made more than $50,000. Whenever I chose to play I was a sure winner."

"Appleby has not done any work since I've known him," the Baroness said in her testimony. "He simply gambles. Only year he kept away from Monte Carlo was 1908, when he had plenty of money without drawing on the bank."

Cross-examiner asked her if she was an absconder from justice or had been committed for trial on a larceny charge in San Francisco. She replied emphatically in the negative to both questions. She said Appleby gave her a necklace on which she had borrowed $15,000 from Miss Shafer, an American, whose address she refused to give. She said her maiden name was Maria Duggs.

Prof. Appleby Is a Relative of the Duke of Clarendon.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Jan. 21.—Dr. Ernest Villers Appleby, husband of the late Cornelia Day Wilder-Appleby of St. Paul, a son of former Archdeacon Appleby of the Episcopal diocese of St. Paul, former University of Minnesota professor, and a relative of the Duke of Clarendon, whose suit in London to recover $20,000 from Baroness May de Pallandt is now being heard, was widely known here.

The plaintiff's friends in St. Paul expressed surprise at the court action and the alleged relations between Dr. Appleby and the Baroness.

Mrs. Cornelia Day Wilder-Appleby died in January, 1903, and, according to friends of the family, Dr. Appleby apparently was overwhelmed with grief, and they cannot account for the report that he became infatuated with the Baroness in that year. From other sources, further information was obtained which intimated that he was paying suit to the Baroness at the time he was endeavoring to break the will of Mrs. Wilder-Appleby.

By an ante-nuptial agreement made in Philadelphia, Mrs. Wilder-Appleby promised Dr. Appleby an annuity of $10,000 providing he remain single. The residue of her estate was left to charity. Dr. Appleby sought to have her will set aside, on the grounds of public policy and litigation lasted from 1903 to 1910. Dr. Appleby finally was given the lump sum of $140,000. He left St. Paul in 1909 and has never returned. He has since been living in London. The estate left by Mrs. Cornelia Day Wilder-Appleby amounted to about $750,000.

Mrs. Wilder-Appleby was the only daughter of the late Amherst H. Wilder. Her mother, Fannie S. Wilder, died in April, 1903, and litigation of the three wills left by the members of the Wilder family eventually resulted in a decree confirming title to the Wilder estates in the trustees and placing the Wilder charities on a firm basis.

Dr. Appleby was graduated from the University of Minnesota in 1894, and in 1900 became a member of the faculty as assistant instructor in ophthalmology and otology. In 1902 he became chemical instructor in the same department, resigning in 1909.

Baroness de Pallandt Formerly Was Miss May Dugas of Michigan.

MENOMINEE, Mich., Jan. 21.—Baroness de Pallandt was formerly Miss May Dugas of this place, where her family now resides. She was never divorced and the Baron died one year ago. She has frequently visited here and has fitted out the family home with furnishings considered to be worth $100,000. Her latest addition to the estate is a shooing lodge, said to be one of the finest in the country. She is a fine shot, a good horsewoman and a lover of outdoor sports.

After her separation from her husband she made a trip around the world. John D. Kilpatrick, a wealthy New Yorker, met her abroad, urged his attentions upon her, and when she broke with him he ended his life in the Hotel Martinique, New York, in 1912.

She obtained judgment in New York against Charles B. Flynn, a mining engineer, for $20,000, on a note Flynn had given to her in 1903. She is said to own much valuable jewelry, especially pearls, to which she is partial.

German Firm's Letters, for Theft of Which Clerk Was Sentenced, Show Rakeoff Arrangements on Contracts.

BERLIN, Jan. 21.—Letters showing that the Siemens-Schuckert electrical concern, one of the leading firms in Germany, arranged to pay commissions to Vice-Admiral Koichi Fujii, formerly Japanese naval attache in Berlin, on all business done by the firm for the Japanese Navy, were read in court here today during the trial of a former stenographer of the firm's Tokio branch. The accused was sentenced by the Court to two years' servitude on a charge of stealing confidential correspondence between the branch and head offices, and of attempted blackmail.

One of the extracts from the correspondence said 2½ per cent commission was to be paid to Vice-Admiral Fujii. Other heavy commissions were mentioned, particularly one of $56,250, which had been authorized for particularly confidential expenditures in securing a $375,000 contract for the erection of a wireless station by a subsidiary German telegraph company.

The company denied that it paid commissions to officials, but did not disavow the letters.

DYNAMITERS GET STAY OF MANDATE PENDING AN APPEAL

U. S. Supreme Court to Be Asked to Reverse Sentences Against 24 Union Leaders.

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—A stay of mandate in the cases of the alleged dynamiters convicted at Indianapolis and whose application for new trials recently were denied, was granted to the defendants by the United States Court of Appeals here today.

The cases of 30 defendants were appealed, and new trials were ordered for six of them. Today's decision has the effect of staying sentence in the cases of the remaining 24 until the Supreme Court of the United States passes on their appeal. Application to this court for a writ of certiorari will be made by Attorney E. N. Zoline for the defendants on Feb. 7. He will plead:

That inasmuch as all of the defendants were alleged to have been linked together in the charge of conspiracy to transport dynamite, all of the defendants should have been granted new trials, instead of only six of them.

That the defendants were doubly punished: Once for conspiracy to transport dynamite and again for the actual transportation of explosive.

That Ortie McManigal and Edward Clark, having pleaded guilty to a felony, were incompetent witnesses and should have been tried separately.

That the offenses charged were barred by the statute of limitations at the time of the indictments.

That no Federal offense was proved.

That decisions of Courts of Appeal conflict in similar cases.

WAITS FOR HUSBAND; FINDS HE ENDED LIFE

Wife of Robe. Rougtell Notified of His Act After Long Police Quest to Find Her.

When waiting for the return of her husband, Robert Rougtell, 50 years old, at her home, 4343 Page boulevard, Tuesday night about 11 o'clock, Mrs. Mary Rougtell was notified by the police that he had ended his life.

A man, later identified as Rougtell, was found in O'Fallon Park at 3 p. m. Tuesday by Henry Stocke, a keeper. He was dying, and an empty carbolic acid bottle was by his side. A note in his pocket reading, "Please notify Charles, Forest 1656," was the only means of identification. It was found that "Charles" was Rougtell's married stepson, Charles F. Baumgartner, of 4421 Evans avenue, but no one could be found at that house until late Tuesday night, when the family returned from a visit in Granite City.

Rougtell, who was an electrical contractor, had been troubled with insomnia several years, his wife said.

WISCONSIN EUGENIC LAW INVALID, IS RULING

Milwaukee Circuit Judge Finds It Violates Rights Secured by Constitution.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Jan. 21.—The Wisconsin eugenics law regulating the issuance of marriage licenses yesterday was held unconstitutional by Circuit Judge F. C. Eschweiler.

The Court holds the law which provides for a physician's certificate of health, including the Wasserman test, is violative of the rights secured by the Constitution and that it conflicts with religious liberty, because it tends to prevent marriages.

The Court disagreed with the recent rulings of Attorney-General Walter C. Owen, who held that the law did not require the Wasserman test.

The Court maintains that if the State wishes to exercise its right to prevent undesirables from marriage it should assume the burden of weeding out the unfit and thereby not cast upon the "it an unfair demand and thus materially impair an inalienable right.

WOMAN KILLED BY HUSBAND WHO ENDS HIS LIFE

East St. Louis Man Shoots Wife and Himself on Street—Son Witnesses Tragedy.

Mrs. Elizabeth Winn, who was shot by her husband, Charles Winn, a meat-cutter, at Eighth street and St. Clair avenue, Tuesday night at 8 o'clock, died at St. Mary's Hospital at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning. Winn who turned his revolver on himself after shooting his wife, died at an earlier hour.

In company with Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Schafer, with whom she was living, Mrs. Winn started at 8 o'clock to go to a euchre party, taking her son with her.

At Eighth street and St. Clair avenue, Mrs. Winn met her husband, Charles Winn, from whom she separated Jan. 8. Winn suddenly drew his revolver and fired two shots at his wife, both taking effect in her abdomen. Then, before Schafer could prevent him, Winn sent a bullet through his own brain.

Both were rushed to St. Mary's Hospital.

The trouble between man and wife originated Jan. 8, when Mrs. Winn had him arrested for forcing her to leap from a second story window. Mrs. Winn then left her husband, and lived with the Schafers.

According to Attorney J. E. Grace Winn told him that he once served 11 months in a Northern penitentiary for bigamy.

Besides Everett, there is another son, Harold, 14 years old. Winn was 38, and his wife 37 years old. The Winn home was at 817 North Eighth street.

J. A. Lodwick, 73 Years Old, Slashes Throat With Razor at Home in Ferguson.

J. A. Lodwick, 73 years old, formerly superintendent of the Mississippi Glass Co., St. Louis, attempted to end his life by cutting his throat in a woodshed at the rear of his home on Darst road in Ferguson at 3:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

Lodwick has been an invalid four years as a result of being struck by a wagon as he alighted from a street car in St. Louis. His attempt to end his life is attributed by Dr. J. T. Douglas, who attended him, to despondency over his condition, which, Dr. Douglas believes, impaired his mind.

Mrs. Lodwick instructed John Woolman, employed at the Lodwick home as a yardman, to watch her husband. Tuesday afternoon, Woolman said, Lodwick went into the shed, 50 yards from the house, and closed the door. When Lodwick failed to come out, Woolman forced open the door. He found Lodwick lying in a wheelbarrow with a deep gash cut in his throat with a razor. He has only a slight chance for recovery.

75 FORD WORKMEN WED ON INCREASE IN INCOME

Profit-Sharing Plan Answers Question of "Why Young Men Don't Marry."

DETROIT, Jan. 21.—Since the Ford Automobile Co. plan of profit-sharing was announced several weeks ago, no less than 75 workers in the plant have been married. Twenty-five applied for marriage licenses last Saturday. More are applying for licenses every day. In many cases the brides-to-be call for the licenses, the men being too busy to take time off for that purpose.

"It looks to me," said Alexander H. Stewart, marriage license clerk, today, "that Henry Ford has answered the much-mooted question, 'Why is it that many thousands of young men nowadays refuse to get married?'

"It's simply because they have not the necessary funds or income to warrant them entering on marriage responsibilities. This is what I have gathered from what the Ford employes have said."

WOMAN GETS $100 FROM STORE ON STOLEN CHECK

Customer Offers Check in Payment for Coat, Gets Change and Disappears.

A gray-haired woman, stylishly costumed, who gave a $100 check that had been stolen in payment for a pony coat she purchased at one of the downtown department stores, is being sought by the police. She introduced herself as Mrs. E. A. Boone of 3618 Cass avenue.

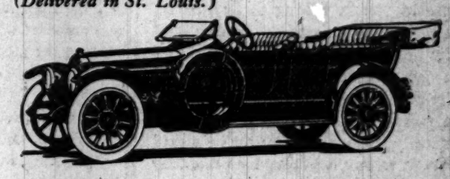

The check was drawn on the German-American Bank, and was made payable to E. A. Boone. It bore the signature of the Landis Machine Co., Twenty-fifth and Mullanphy streets. When the check was presented at the bank the department store was notified payment had been stopped because the owner, E. A. Boone of 1383 Blackstone avenue had reported it was stolen from him.

MISS ANNA SAFRON WEDS

Miss Anna Safron, who several years ago won a prize for being the "prettiest girl" in St. Louis, became the bride of Sam Friedman of the Friedman Loan Co., Wednesday evening at 9:45 o'clock, at the home of the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. Friedman, 4212 West Pine boulevard, Rabbi Sale officiating.

Although only 19 years old, the bride is well known in St. Louis and the Southwest, having taken several beauty prizes. The couple left for the East after the ceremony, and from Washington will go to Bermuda. They will make their home in St. Louis.

The Hudson Six-54, $2285
(Delivered in St. Louis.)

Cost of Running HUDSON Six Is Less Than a Four

Prove it for yourself. Make the best record you can with your Four. Don't deceive yourself. Be fair about it. Then come to us and ask us to show you what we can do with the HUDSON Six of proportionately the same class and horse-power. We will show you that it will cost you less to own and run a HUDSON Six than to continue to use your Four. This may surprise you, in view of the vehement assertions of dealers who want to sell Fours. Nevertheless, it is a fact capable of easy demonstration.

Until you drive a HUDSON Six you cannot realize its great advantage. Its smoothness and flexibility are an insurance as well as a delight. HUDSON Sixes are preferred because of high quality combined with moderate price. The Six-54 has four forward speeds, 135-inch wheel-base, motor 4½x5½, developing 55 horse-power. Made in phaeton at $2285 and Sedan at $3135. The Six-40 has 123-inch wheel base, motor 3½ x5, developing 47 horse-power, gives 13 to 17 miles to the gallon of gasoline, and is, we think, the easiest-riding car on the market. The Six-40 in Phaeton and Roadster at $1775, and in Cabriolet at $1975. All cars, of course, are electrically started and lighted, left-side drive, center control, gasoline tank in cowled dash. Catalog on request. Demonstrations as arranged. Prices f. o. b. St. Louis.

Ruddy Cheeks—Sparkling Eyes—Most Women Can Have.

Says Dr. Edwards, a Well-Known Ohio Physician.

Dr. F. M. Edwards for 17 years treated thousands of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave to his patients a prescription made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. You will know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter that one's system collects.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women, as well as men, take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets now and then just to keep in the pink of condition.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

A Tax Comparison.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

In your editorial, "One Step at a Time," of Saturday, Jan. 10, 1914, in speaking of the mill tax suit against the United Railways Co., you say the city levied a tax of 1 mill on each 5c cash fare, or 2 per cent on the gross receipts, as rental for use of the streets, etc.

The amount now due the city exceeds $2,000,000 and that it is proposed by members of the city administration that the city shall compromise its mill tax suit against the United Railways, the company to pay the city $1,000,000, the city to withdraw its suit and grant the company additional franchise privileges.

In comparison with this, here is the way the taxes, interest, fees and commissions on a certain piece of property figure up, the owner being a "poor devil" and unable to pay his taxes until they were due one year:

State and State Interest Tax	19c	Per.	100—	4.18.6
School Tax	80c	"	100—	19.44.0
Municipal Revenue	100c	"	100—	22.40.0
Interest on Public Debt Rev.	6 1-4c	"	100—	4.53.8
Int. Sink. Fd. Wids.Fr. Bonds	5c	"	100—	1.62.0
Int. Sink. Fd. Pb. Bds. and Imp. Bds.	18c	"	100—	5.83.2
Public Library	4c	"	100—	1.29.6
Art Museum	2c	"	100—	64.8
Total Taxes				$71.92.8
Interest to March 31, 1913				2.17.2
Register's Fees				50.0
Additional Interest				6.480
Commission				1.63.0
Total				$82.71.0

This comparison presents a problem to the aforesaid poor devil, something like this, which he would like someone to solve, namely, if the mill tax was figured out with all the trimmings and collected as remorselessly as his was, how many million dollars' worth of bonds would the city have to sell in order to have money enough to complete the free bridge? H. W. C.

Complete the Free Bridge.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I want to compliment you on the stand the Post-Dispatch is taking for the completion of the free bridge, and trust that you will keep up the fight until same is finished. It seems to me that the quickest action could be had, by repealing the Southern Traction franchise, and employing Union Labor to do the work, and under these conditions, I feel the bond issue would positively pass. GEORGE E. DIECKMAN.

A Plea for Refined Pleasure.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I overhead a conversation in the cars yesterday between two ladies, prominent St. Louisans, in regard to the present state of society. The Sunday desecration and vulgar dancing was the subject. The younger woman, while agreeing, said: "Why not look at this fearful condition the right way? The time has come when the world wants to romp. Let them romp the right way, time and place. If the tango is a vulgar dance stop it; this lies with mothers and fathers, and I will add ministers. Sunday simply must be observed and respected; the happiness and refinement of life require it. There is nothing I remember with more pleasure than the Sunday evenings I have spent in church with the one (man) I liked best, singing out of the same book, kneeling side by side, listening to the prayers offered, and then returning home and the quiet walk back, refined and elevated."

I only want to add this: If the young people want to romp let them. I for one will help them, only it must be at the right time and right way. MRS. COX.

The Southern Traction Franchise.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

You advocate quick action about bonds for bridge—but do not forget first to have the 50-year franchise of Jep Howe's car line removed or reduced. There is no hope for the bond issue passing, you by this time will know, if that is not done. A SUBSCRIBER.

A Voice From the Ranks

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Relative to the so-called bums not long since the Post-Dispatch published an advertisement of a leading business man who needed 20 men. This man told me he was safe in saying over 500 good-looking men had answered this ad. Another man told me he wanted a dishwasher and advertised in your paper, with the result that over 50 men had applied for the position, and my impression is that these conditions confront everyone who places an advertisement in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Personally, I know that what are commonly termed bums do the hardest kind of manual labor and are today praying that the wheels of our great industries may turn in a direction that will afford an opportunity to earn the customary pork and beans, while their more fortunate brothers enjoy roast beef and its accompaniments.

J. M. SHULER.

REORGANIZING BIG BUSINESS.

The new important subject of legislation, not in the original program, which President Wilson embodied in his message to Congress is the superintendence and regulation of the financial operations of railroads by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Referring to the harm and injustice done to railroad systems "by the way in which they have been financed and their own distinctive interests subordinated to the interests of the men who financed them, and of other enterprises which they wished to promote," the President clearly and vigorously expressed the need of such regulation and the readiness of the country to accept it. He urged this step as one that would protect the railroads from "many serious handicaps and hazards" and would mark decided progress "toward the necessary separation of the business of production from the business of transportation."

The Post-Dispatch has a special interest in this measure of reform because, although it had been suggested and recommended before the Frisco and New Haven scandals, this paper used them, particularly the Frisco exposure, as the occasion of starting an effective practical campaign for prompt congressional action, which made the issue acute. The President was swift to grasp and utilize the timely condition, which assures the success of his proposal.

The remainder of the program recommended by the President was fully outlined and discussed before the delivery of the message. It includes the prohibition of interlocking directorates and holding companies; personal guilt for corporate misdeeds; redress for individuals injured by monopoly oppression and definitions of illegal trust practices supplementary to the Sherman anti-trust law, which is not to be amended.

An important recommendation is the creating of a Trade Commission to supervise interstate corporations and commerce and advise both the Government and business men for the purpose of harmonizing business with law at the least cost of friction and litigation. The commission is not to have independent executive or judicial powers, but its functions are advisory. It is different from the trust-regulating commission proposed by Mr. Roosevelt.

The message seems to go far in the exercise of Federal control of interstate business, but the legislation suggested merely supplements and completes measures already calling for the exercise of Federal control. All of them are well within the constitutional power of the Federal Government.

A notable and admirable feature of the message is its temper. Firm, but peaceful in tone, it urges co-operation between Congress and the people in bringing business into harmony with public opinion and law. Assuming that the things which are recommended are the fruits of experience and public judgment, the President reminds Congress that it is merely the agent of the popular will in embodying the conscience and thought of the people in law.

Nowhere can we find a finer definition of the legislative function than that expressed in the President's statement:

> Constructive legislation, when successful, is always the embodiment of convincing experience and of the mature public opinion which finally springs out of that experience. Legislation is a business of interpretation, not of origination.

We are fortunate in this time of stress when we are correcting far-reaching evils in business and reorganizing it on sound principles, to have a President who combines the skill of the politician and the wisdom of the practical statesman with the mastery of political science. The schoolmaster in the presidency is justified.

GOV. MAJOR'S PREDICTION.

I want to go on record as saying that any Congressman who opposes this (the good roads) appropriation will be defeated for election—Gov. Major.

How brands of Democracy that are not for appropriations can exist and how Congressmen may win elections by opposing raids on the Federal Treasury seems incomprehensible to Gov. Major. That Missouri might, like other states, spend its own money in improving its roads seems equally incomprehensible.

BOARD OF HEALTH MILK BILL.

Careful examination of the new milk regulation bill, prepared by the Board of Health, on which a public hearing will be held in the House of Delegates this afternoon, shows that it is an improvement over the sections of the present ordinance which it is intended to displace.

It places the control of the milk industry in the Board of Health, where it naturally belongs.

It requires a sworn statement, on a printed form provided by the Health Commissioner, from all milk dealers, giving all necessary information. The old ordinance merely required a written statement, unsworn, to be filed with the City Chemist.

It requires the pasteurization of all milk offered for sale, under rigid regulations, except in certain cases permitted by the Board of Health under a special provision.

It gives the Board of Health power to revoke a license after due hearing, for violation of the law.

It makes strict provision for the consumer's protection in the case of "skimmed," adulterated or misbranded milk, cream or milk products.

It leaves in full force the best provisions of the present law.

It increases the maximum penalty for violation of the law to $200, thus giving the courts power to penalize heavily those who willfully defraud and poison the public with adulterated or impure milk, cream, etc.

This milk regulation bill has been subject to the criticism of the dealers for months, and the Board of Health has apparently deleted everything of an unreasonable nature. As it stands, the bill injures no honest producer or dealer. It should become law.

With the revolt in the McAlester prison and three masked men on cayuses shooting up the bank at Pittsburg, Ok., and robbing it of $2500 in daylight, it almost seems like old days in the "Territory."

THE UNCONVINCED TEN.

A definite promise of support for the Hines bill to end free bridge delay is refused by 10 of the 28 members of the House of Delegates.

Nine of the 10 wards that elected these men gave a majority for the bridge bonds at the special election of August, 1912. Six of these wards gave the bonds two-thirds majority. Seven of the wards even voted for the bonds under the unfavorable circumstances existing when the issue was submitted at the election of November, 1912. The total majority for bonds in all 10 wards was imposing.

The figures refute these Delegates when they say that the people do not want to vote the bonds. The only people for whom they have a right to speak in this matter do want a bond issue. The cynicism as to the popular attitude is only assumed. The 10 prefer completion plans with possibilities of jobbery, litigation and more delay to a plain, simple, direct proposition.

Conditions have greatly changed since the last vote. The Supreme Court decision has eliminated the claim of bottling by the Terminal. The Republican organization under Chairman Kiel would not again be found in opposition. The voters are disgusted at bridge delay. They want the bridge put in shape for their use.

Some of these 10 strenuously urge the ward system of representation in the Assembly. They are illustrating the worst evils of that system. They are misrepresenting their own wards and the desires of the city as a whole.

There is no escape from the obligation to which every fact developed during 18 months of bridge discussion points. Action must succeed sloth. The duty is to pass the Hines bill in time for an early spring vote. If the 10 do not believe their constituents will approve the bonds let them give those constituents a chance to vote.

The suicide of the Japanese forecaster who failed to issue storm warnings on the Kagoshima disturbance sets no precedent likely to deplete the personnel of our own weather service.

BRANCH REGIONAL BANKS.

An important feature in the structure of the new Federal reserve system is provided for as follows in the text of the Glass-Owen currency law:

> Each Federal reserve bank shall establish branch banks within the Federal reserve district in which it is located and may do so in the district of any Federal reserve bank which may have suspended. Such branches shall be operated by a board of directors under rules and regulations approved by the Federal Reserve Board. Directors of branch banks shall possess the same qualifications as directors of Federal reserve banks. Four of said directors shall be selected by the Federal reserve bank and three by the Federal Reserve Board and they shall hold office during the pleasure respectively of the parent bank and the Federal Reserve Board. The reserve bank shall designate one of the directors as manager.

Each branch bank with its independent Board of Directors will thus provide practically the same facilities for business needs in the centers in which they are placed as a Federal reserve bank. If the claims of certain important commercial cities now competing for regional banks are not recognized by the Organization Board meeting here today, they can be content, for they are sure to be given branch banks.

If the 12 states and parts of states which St. Louis desires to have form its district are included, the more important cities of the territory may be promised branch banks which to all intents and purposes will provide the benefits and conveniences of regional banks.

Just as we get the tariff question settled, the currency needs of the country provided for and the trust problem solved, along comes this tango dance to disturb the national equilibrium.

A PROOF OF SANITY.

Is sanity unappreciated in this neighborhood? Just because Anton Luecke gave away his grocery store to his young lady cashier his brothers ask the Probate Court to declare him of unsound mind.

Anton was in poor health physically and wanted to retire. The young woman had shown herself competent to manage the business with its dozen employes. She assumed its debts. She gave promise of making it prosper.

Her photographic likeness which has been made public, so far as it can have a bearing on the issue, indicates bright capacity, character, sterling business integrity, even more—in short, that she is precisely the sort of young woman to whom a man of sound mind and nice discrimination would gladly give a grocery store. Indeed, the portrait reflects acumen and foresight in the giver of the grocery store.

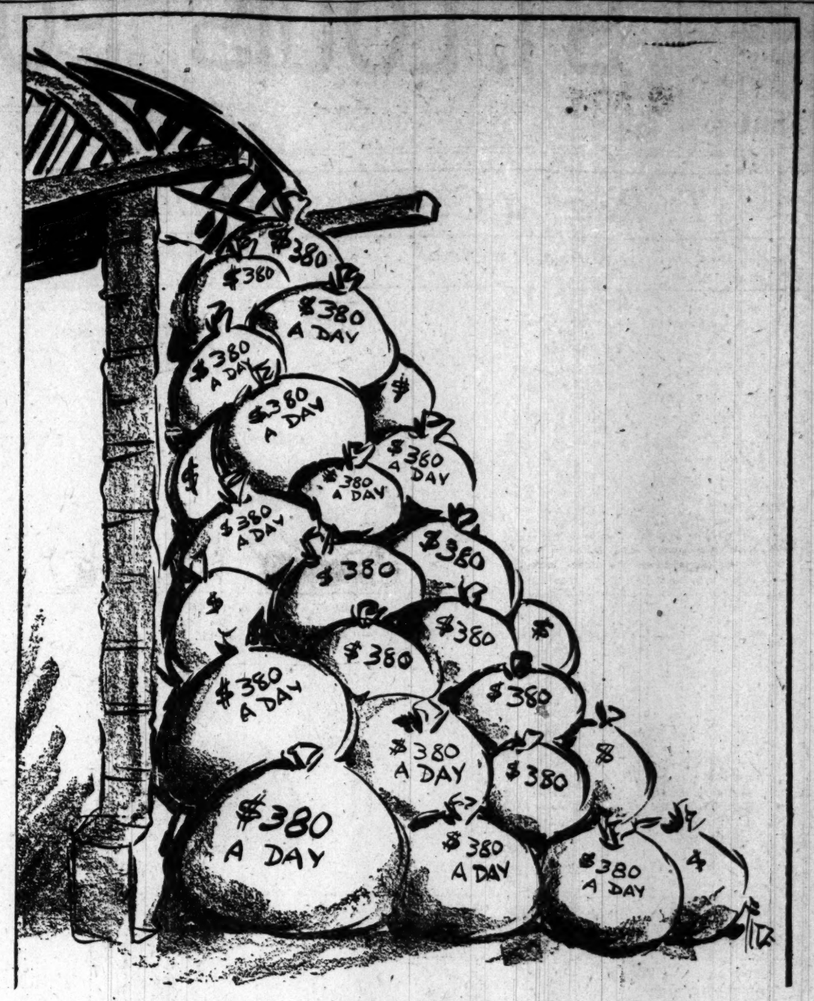

If we had a grocery store and were looking to the future of the business, we would not give it to some grim brothers who could not take a prize in a beauty show. We would rather give our grocery store to somebody who would just naturally attract a whole lot of trade.

It is a sign of sanity to go crazy over some things.

ST. LOUIS SERVES.

One fact stands out above all others in the array of data submitted to Secretaries McAdoo and Houston. It is this: St. Louis serves, and, unless existing natural and deeply worn channels of trade are changed arbitrarily, must continue to serve the commerce and industry of a dozen Southern and Western states as their chief financial center.

St. Louis asks only to be allowed to continue, under the new law, the service which her banking capital has enabled her to give under the old law.

THE BRIDGE REPROACH.

JUST A MINUTE.

Written for the Post-Dispatch by Clark McAdams.

THE COPY BOY ON PICTURE SHOWS.

alas for woe that fills my cup the picture shows are going up
And what was bliss for seven springs becomes the sport of money kings

when all the picture men were poor they charged a nickel at the door
And ere their fortunes came tew thrive were very glad tew get the five in that still unforgotten time their eyes bugged out tew see a dime

And all of them so much tew view were glad tew barter seats for 2 alack for paradise that was and all the ills that fortune does

In those sweet days the world was mine and beauty worshipped at my shrine

I well recall my feelings when the picture shows went up to ten
I cursed the ruin that it spelt and took the stump for ruseyvelt for sum time then I went alone bemoaning beauty i had known

And sweet endearments wont tew thrive beside me on the other five at fifteen cents i bit the dust

tew hope and pray the movies bust
Like all things else that hit the ditch for going over tew the rich

One hundred and two persons are said to have lost their lives in the Alps last year. It is believed that there has been some slip in the figures.

Now that it is possible to get liquor either by express or parcel post, the dry majorities are becoming about twice as big as they were. Warrensburg, Mo., rolled up a total dry majority of 205 yesterday.

Kansas City is said to be very angry with us because we have a better claim upon a regional bank than she has.

Mr. Wilson says he is only saying what we all think. It does make pretty dull reading.

WAITING.

"Did you read the President's message on trusts?"

"No. What did he say about them?"

"He said they were all rich enough to retire, and would gladly do so if we asked them."

A retired clergyman tells a good joke at his own expense. He officiated at a vacation supply in a suburban church. One Sunday after service, an old lady, the housekeeper in the home of a friend, spoke to him. "I want to tell you, sir," she said, "how much I enjoy going to church on the days that you preach." The clergyman was much gratified. Oh, sir," she added, with appalling candor, "I get such a good seat then!"—Newark Star.

Secretary Houston will doubtless remember us.

MISSOURI BANQUET SONG.

We read about the Nutmeg State and the State of the Redmen's home,
The Granite State, the Creole State and the State where the gophers roam,
They tell about the Golden State and the State of William Penn,
But give me old Missouri with her hen-hen-hen.

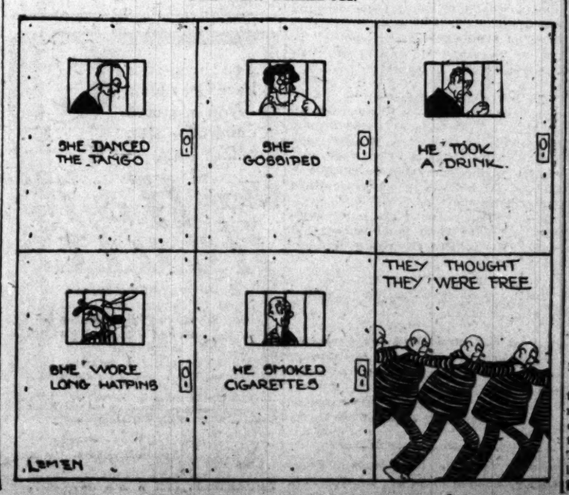

Indiana has her Hoosiers, Illinois her mines,
Kentucky has her bluegrass, and Maine her lofty pines,
Arizona has her sandhills, Ohio famous men,
But give me old Missouri with her hen-hen-hen.

We call her the great mule State and kick her yaller hound,
And preach about the many things that lie beneath the ground,
We boast her famous Ozarks, but we get together when
We all intone the praises of the hen-hen-hen.

Indiana has her Hoosiers, Illinois her mines,
Kentucky has her bluegrass, and Maine her lofty pines,
Arizona has her sandhills, but let us say amen—
For the Show-Me State, Missouri, with her hen-hen-hen.

THE NEW FREEDOM.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

ETIQUETTE.

W. R.—Not necessary to answer wedding announcement.

MOON.—The best man's most important duty is to take charge of the ring, but he is really supposed to think of everything for the bridegroom on the wedding day. To him is intrusted the paying of the minister's and organist's fees. He does this immediately after the ceremony. At the wedding reception he assists in escorting guests to greet the bridal pair. Later he escorts the maid of honor to the dining room. In other words, he renders "first aid" to the benedict in every possible manner.

HEALTH HINTS.

SUNDAY NEWSBOY.—Rupture has been cured by injection.

A GOOD FRIEND.—You can get free treatment at O'Fallon clinic.

F. H. K.—Any capable physician can treat you for blood poisoning.

SLEEPY.—You are tired and sleepy after dinner. Perhaps you eat too much or eat too fast, or of foods that disagree with you. Try Fletcherizing.

A. R.—Dr. Cusing of Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, cures neuralgia by destroying the nerve that causes it; he finds a new approach to the nerve. Some apply a mustard plaster to the elbow.

JOHN.—Styes are caused by irritation of the hair follicle out of which an eyelash springs. They should be opened as soon as pus is formed, for they will not get well as long as pus remains. Rubbing stye with a gold ring is a time-honored remedy. So is rubbing eyelid with camphor gum. When stye neither scatters nor comes to a head, it is best to apply a warm poultice of flaxseed or bread and milk; lance with fine needle and bathe with warm water. Follow this with occasional eyelid baths of alum water to heal and allay the inflammation.

LAW POINTS.

HARRIS.—Talk with Prosecuting Attorney, Municipal Courts Building, about the wife who took your money and eloped with a young man.

OLD SUB.—As to certified copy of will, see Clerk of Probate Court. Same may cost you $1 or more; ask cost before giving order.

BLUE GRASS.—Should you expect $50 from an express company for an article worth only $1, there might be an investigation that would interfere with your scheme.

J. G. S.—One may write his own will, but to do so should be familiar with the laws of inheritance. Even the wills of great lawyers have been successfully contested.

READER.—Furniture house may charge different prices if it chooses to do so. It is not compelled to take back an article because it has sold a similar one cheaper to someone else.

WILLIE.—If furniture is taken, and sold according to mortgage, and brings less than amount you still owe, you may be held for the balance. However, they may not go to extremes and be satisfied to get it, being content with amount thus far paid thereon.

SAM.—A purchaser at a trustee's sale may get a good merchantable title, and he may not. He buys as it stands, subject to taxes, or liens that have priority over deed of trust, and any defects in title. Trustee does not warrant the title of mortgagor, neither does the deed he executes to purchaser contain any warrantees of a perfect title.

FRANK.—A woman cohabiting with a man who has no living wife aside from herself, of whom she is aware, and who holds himself out to be her husband by so conducting himself toward the people among whom they live that the latter are led to believe the couple are husband and wife, are treated as such by the courts when proper proof is exhibited. She is said to be a "common law" wife merely to show the courts' respect for custom, the basis of all our law, and to distinguish such a wife from one who married under the statutes or written law requiring that a couple procure a license to wed. Where a man has two "common law" wives the first one is the real wife. If the facts are clearly established, the husband is subject to prosecution in the Criminal Court for bigamy. This does not apply in Illinois, common law marriage being no longer recognized there. We advise every unmarried woman to beware of common-law marriage.

MISCELLANEOUS.

R. F.—Do as your conscience prompts you in regard to the dishonest boss.

F. S. M.—Gen. Grenville Mellen Dodge, Baldwin Bank, Council Bluffs, Io.

J. M.—Tickets for automobile drawing or its equivalent are unmailable.

O. H. F. K.—For Nebraska homestead land write Land Office, Lincoln, Neb.

HOUCK.—Any native of the District of Columbia could be President of the United States.

SUBURBANITE.—West Farms, Westchester County, N. Y., is not included in Bronx Borough, New York City.

A. B. C.—Get full free information as to mushrooms by writing Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

XIX.—For night high school one must graduate from district night schools or give evidence of sufficient preparation.

C. S.—The book you need "to find out how many miles each state is from St. Louis" is an atlas with scale maps. See Public Library reference room.

G. A. R.—To study cartooning it is better to attend an art school; but no school can make anyone a cartoonist who has not the knowledge and ideas necessary for successful cartoon work. Superior cartoons are always in demand.

D. E. C.—We cannot read the girl's mind, therefore cannot say whether she is true to you. Girls are a puzzle. Their idea being that they must marry, anyhow, they may or may not love the bridegroom. Two years difference in age amounts to nothing with those who have common sense. In fact, a conceited young man often needs the training a wife older than himself may give him.

F. I. H.—To fix metal letters to glass, dissolve 1 pound shellac in 1 pint methylated spirit, and add one-twentieth part of a solution of India rubber dissolved in carbon bisulphide. If there is any unevenness in the glass, it is better to use a paste composed of about equal parts of tub white lead, dry red lead and gold size. Apply this freely to the back of the letters, and allow to slightly set before placing the letters into position.

W. R.—Mange is caused by mites which burrow in the skin and cause an itching eruption and dryness of the hair, which falls out. It is generally caused by uncleanliness. Washing every second day with carbolic soap is the first step toward a cure; dress the sores daily with a mild mercurial ointment, or with a solution of four grains of corrosive sublimate to an ounce of water. An occasional bath and brushing will keep the skin of a cat or dog in condition and prevent mange and other skin diseases.

J. B. H.—Deepest mine in the world is No. 3 shaft of Tamarack copper mine in Houghton County, Mich., which has a vertical depth of 4,760 feet, or 80 feet less than one mile. Three other shafts of the same company and three of the Calumet and Hecla mine have depths of between 4000 and 5000 feet. There are coal mines in England between 3000 and 4000 feet deep; in Fife, Scotland, there is a coal mine 4000 feet deep; the deepest gold mine in Australia is 4300 feet, and the deepest in South Africa is about 4000 feet, but the Michigan copper mine is deepest. Observations as to increase of temperature show that it varies in different parts of the world; in most localities it is 1 degree for every 50 to 100 feet of depth, but in the Michigan mine it is 1 degree for each 264 feet. In some mines work has been carried on at a rock temperature of 130 to 140 degrees, but at that men could work half an hour at a time only, two hours in a day and deaths were frequent.

CLOTURE IN THE SENATE.

From a Senate Speech by Robert L. Owen.

The Senate of the United States has rules for its conduct that make it almost impossible to get a bill through, except by unanimous consent, where a resolute minority is opposed to the passage of the bill. Under the so-called privilege of "freedom of debate," a group of Senators can hold up any measure indefinitely by endless talk in relays and by use of dilatory motions, moving "no quorum," moving to "adjourn," moving to "take a recess," moving to "adjourn to a day certain," reading for an hour or so from Martin Chuzzlewitt or Pickwick papers, moving a point of "no quorum," moving to "adjourn," moving "no quorum," moving to "adjourn to a day certain," moving to "take a recess," moving to go into "executive session," and reading a few chapters of Huckleberry Finn—and this puerile conduct is dignified by the false pretense of being "freedom of debate," when, in point of fact, it is nothing of the kind. It is the minority veto under the false pretense of freedom of debate, under the ridiculous pretense of freedom of debate, under the contemptible and odious pretense of freedom of debate.

It is not freedom of debate. The minority veto is a denial of freedom of debate. A man in charge of an important bill is driven to refrain from debating the bill, because he would be playing into the hands of the opponents of the bill who are trying to kill the bill by exhausting the patience of the Senate by endless volubility and unending dilatory motions.

This thoughtless rule of unlimited freedom of debate was adopted in 1806, when there were 34 Senators, who met together to discuss their common affairs in courtesy and good faith, when only a very few bills were brought before the Senate. They had no conception that unlimited freedom of debate really meant a minority veto. Now that the Senate has 96 members, representing 90,000,000 people, when its interests are of the most gigantic importance, when its modern problems of stupendous consequences are demanding prompt and virile action, when hundreds of important bills are pending, this hoary-headed reprobate rises up and strikes a posture of inscrutable wisdom and admonishes the world not to touch this sacred principle of unlimited "freedom of debate." The venerable age of this foolish precedent shall not save it from the just charge of imbecility and legislative vice.

The power to obstruct the will of the people by the Senate rules is the last ditch of privilege. In the House of Representatives the party in power, with its majority is carrying out the will of the majority, permitting reasonable debate and wide publicity to the views of all members. But in the Senate, while we have reorganized the committees and have made important improvements in the rules, there still remains the point of unlimited debate, of irrelevant debate, of dilatory motions, whereby the minority can still prevent the action of the majority placed in power by the people. The United States Senate is the only place where the people's will can be successfully thwarted, and here it can be obstructed and denied by delays, by dilatory motions, by irrelevant debate and unlimited discussion.

The new majority of the Senate is honestly pledged to the people's cause, and they must carry out their pledges if they wish to retain the approval of the people of the United States.

Tale of Two Hats.

From the Florida Times-Union.

We have in mind two women. One took a nobby little hat and with materials costing only $2 trimmed it—the other bought what she calls a "creation" and trimmed her husband for $40. The joke is the woman in the $2 hat looks more stylish than the one in the $40 "creation."

HIS FATHER'S SON

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART.

MRS. PRIESTLEY put down the cup of coffee at her son's elbow, and stood hesitatingly beside his chair.

"When you're through, Jim," she said slowly, "I'll—I have something to tell you."

He put down his cup hastily, and half turned toward his mother.

"What is it?" he said. "Anything about Molly?"

"No, it's not Molly. Jim, your father's coming home."

She drew back a little then, frightened by the expression in her son's eyes. Her still rounded face lost some of its color, and she seemed to shrink in her plain, ugly calico dress. At the crash of Jim's overturned chair she put out her hands deprecatingly.

"Don't, now, Jim," she begged. "Don't carry on about it! It would have been only a year or so more, anyhow."

"He's not coming here," he said, the very lack of inflection making his tone menacing.

"It's the only place he's got, Jim," she pleaded. "I know it's yours now, but where else can he go? You wouldn't turn your own father out in the street, would you? He was a good father to you for 15 years, Jimmie."

Jim opened the door with an air of finality; then he closed it again, and came slowly back into the room.

"He's been a good father, has he?" he sneered. "He was a fine one, he was—a credit to his family! We're proud of him, aren't we? Ten years I've walked the streets and seen people turn to look at me, because my father killed a man and was doing time for it. And if you think, after all that, that I'm going to have any shave-pated, lock-stepping ex-convict in my house—my house," he repeated, "you're wrong, that's all. He doesn't come here!"

The painful tears of old age came into her dim eyes, and she fumbled in the bosom of her dress for a handkerchief. Her son watched her irritably, with the unreasoning anger we feel at those we have wounded.

"You know as well as I do, mother," he said more mildly, "that Molly's people wouldn't let her look at me if he came back here. You know what her folks are."

"Molly wouldn't give you up, Jim. If it was her father, she'd stick to him. Everyone knows it was an accident; it was a quarrel, Jim—just the kind of a quarrel your temper may get you into any day. It wasn't murder. You know that Ragan had pulled his revolver, and it was his life or your father's. And he's an old man now—an old man, Jim."

II.

It was Saturday night. The corners around the market house and the city hall were crowded with men, loud-voiced and laughing, with here and there a reeling tottering group, who punctuated their unsteady progress with noisy, braggart oaths. From somewhere out of sight came the rhythmic beat of a drum and the shrill song of the Salvation Army, and a waffle vender was crying his wares with the metallic jangle of a beaten triangle. Through the crowds Jim Priestley, his mind a seething whirlpool of shame and pride, walked alone, savagely brooding, brushing past women with babies and men with baskets, shouldering the loafers aside ruthlessly deaf to the men who called to him.

When he finally met Molly she was not alone. Two or three girls were with her, and just behind them, keeping up a running fire of compliments and small talk, were as many young men. Molly looked at Jim as he approached.

"Good evening, Mr. Priestley," she said pertly.

Jim lifted his hat and passed on, black anger and jealousy in his heart.

It was two hours later when Jim, after standing sullenly with a crowd in the poolroom down the street, came back through the market place. The streets were less crowded now; the late buyers had gone home with their baskets; the sleepy babies were tucked in their beds; the butchers, after 20 hours of work, had shut up their stands and gone away. Molly had disappeared and the percentage of drunkards among the corner loafers had increased. Then Jim saw Hollowell.

The cumulative rage of the evening surged up in him and maddened him.

He walked up to the other man with the lust of battle in his face. For a moment each glared a challenge at the other. Neither had been drinking, but both were blind with the intoxication of passion. Hallowell greeted Jim with a taunt, and then, mistaking his rival's speechless fury for moderation, grew facetious for the benefit of the bystanders.

"Say, stripes," he said sneeringly, "next time you go down to the pen I wish you would have your father knit me some socks. They make——"

But Jim's heavy fist had gone home on the point of his chin and he went down with a crash and lay still. Some of the men around stooped over his prostrate figure. The crowd began to grow rapidly, although street fights on Saturday night were too common to cause much excitement. Jim leaned against a post with folded arms, disdaining escape, although a policeman was rounding the corner. Then one of the men who had been examining Hallowell straightened up and came swiftly toward him.

"Run! Get out, quick!" he said under his breath. "He's dead!"

III.

Jim didn't run. He stepped quietly through an open door into the darkened market-house, which was just closing for the night, went through it and out into the deserted street beyond, took a detour through alleys familiar from childhood and so made his way home. He was dazed with the revulsion of feeling—too numb with horror to think of escape. He did not rouse his mother, but made his way over the roof of the coal shed to an upstairs window, and crawled through.

For a while he stood there, the cold night air blowing in on him, the deadly languor of reaction creeping over him. Across the narrow strip of hall he could hear his mother moving about, as if he had awakened her. He brushed back his damp hair and tried to steady his voice.

"Go to bed, mother," he called. "I'm here now."

He went to his own room and lighted the lamp. Then he blew it out again suddenly. They would be after him soon, and he might want to get away—might, because from the chaos of his mind he had not been able to evoke a plan for the future.

He sat by the window, leaning out, watching the street to see if he were pursued, not knowing or caring that it was raining, and that he was wet and cold. He could remember, sitting there in the dark, every incident of his father's arrest 10 years ago—the crowd of neighbors that gathered at the door; his mother's sobs; his father's bowed white head and hopeless face. Then the long days of waiting, the trial and conviction, the appeal, which took their last penny—and failed.

Some one came down the street looking at the numbers. When he was opposite the house, he crossed the street and knocked. In an instant Jim was on his feet and at his mother's door.

"Tell him I'm not here!" he whispered hoarsely. "Call out to him—don't go down!"

"He's not in his room," she quavered from the window, in answer to an inquiry.

The man hesitated, then turned away.

"I'll be back," he said briefly.

She turned to Jim, but he was gone. Back in his room he was turning over feverishly the litter of neckties and handkerchiefs in the upper drawer of the yellow pine bureau. When he had found his revolver, he went cautiously past his mother's door, climbed the attic stairs, entered the attic, and shut and bolted the door at the top.

He groped his way through the darkness to the window beneath the sloping roof. The rain was coming down heavily now, close to his head, and the attic was musty and heavy with the smell of drying soap. Jim settled himself on his knees at the window, the revolver on the floor beside him. Through all the turmoil in his mind, one thing was clear—he would never go to the living death of the penitentiary. The six chambers of the revolver were six sure roads of escape.

Below, the gutters were filled with water that sparkled and bubbled in the electric light. Someone was standing across the street, in the shadow of a doorway, and Jim knew at once that the house was watched.

After a time the rain slackened, and the man across the street sat down on a doorstep, an umbrella over his head. Jim watched him steadily. He grew cramped in his constrained position; his knees ached when he tried to straighten them, and his eyes burned from peering through the darkness. Below, through the thin flooring, he could hear his mother walking. A sudden shame for this new trouble he had brought on her came over him. He who had been so self-righteous, who that very night had refused to give his convict father a home—he was a murderer!

When he looked out again, the man across the street had gone. It was dawn now—a cold, wet dawn, gray and cheerless. Here and there the chimneys of the houses around began to show faint blue lines of smoke, in preparation for the early breakfast of the neighborhood. He heard his mother go stiffly downstairs, heard the shutters open, and the rush and yelp of his setter as it dashed into the little yard after a night in the kitchen. Then there were voices. He picked up the revolver and held it clumsily, his fingers stiff with cold; but no one came up the stairs, and he relaxed again.

The trunks and boxes around him were taking shape now. He saw things he had not seen for years. There was the quaint high chair battered with the heels of lusty babies. He could remember his youngest brother, dead long ago, sitting in it. There was the old squirrel cage, rusty now, and over in a corner, still showing traces of its gorgeous paint of years before, was the red wagon his father had painstakingly made for him from a wooden box. The tongue was gone and one clumsy wheel lay forlornly in the wagon bed; but Jim could see, with the distinctness that long past events sometimes assume, his father's head, gray even then, bent over that uncouth wagon, painting it with unaccustomed fingers and lettering a name on the side. The name was quite clear still—the "Jim Dandy."

Jim got up and sat on a trunk to rest his cramped muscles. The walls of the narrow room began to oppress him, like the walls of a cell, and the little red wagon stood out of its surroundings. He could not escape it; it was a symbol of the joy a very passion of color, in the gray of the past in the hopelessness of the present.

Jim turned his back to it and gazed down at the street. Men with dinner buckets—the Sunday shift at the mill—were leaving the houses around, their hats drawn down, their coat collars turned up around their ears. When they overtook one another they fell into step silently, morosely. One man stopped, just across, and looked over at the Priestley house. Jim opened the window and whistled softly. The other man stepped to the curb and made a trumpet with his hands.

"I hung around here half the night, waiting for you," he called. "Say, Hallowell's all right. He came around in half an hour, and went home."

The revolver clattered to the floor and lay there. Jim nodded silently and closed the window. As he turned, a thin, watery shaft of yellow sunlight came through the window and the little red wagon gleamed joyously.

When Jim went into the kitchen, the table was laid for breakfast. The setter leaped at him with moist caresses, but Jim's eyes were on a stooped figure in a chair by the stove. His mother held out a pleading hand, but Jim did not see it. He went across the room to the old man in the rocking chair and leaned over him, his hands on the bent shoulders.

"Welcome home, father," he said huskily. "Welcome home!"

Making Dresses at Home From Original Designs

What Can Be Done With Same Design Made of Different Material and Trimmings.

By MLLE. LODEWICK.

DESCRIPTION.

THESE two attractive frocks, undeniably different in effect, are fashioned, however, after the same design. For those accumulating their summer wardrobe or for those contemplating a Southern trip, the first one will be appreciated. White French crepe is the selected material, and I have suggested the modish trimming of wool embroidered flowers to edge the chic tunic and straight kimono sleeves.

This may be done in any of the modish colors, such as shades of rose, tango red, brilliant yellow or lavender, with green leaves to set off the flower. Materials are being shown which are spotted with worsted embroidered flowers, either in an all-over design or as a border, and if desired a narrow strip of such a material may be purchased and the flowers cut out and transferred by hand to the desired parts of the gown. The front and back of the shallow round neck is gathered, while an upstanding frill of fine shadow lace gives a dainty finish all around. A deeper ruffle of the same patterned lace falls softly over the arm from the edge of the sleeve. A wide sash of either colored ribbon to match the flowers, or one of black moire would effectively complete the costume.

The second figure shows the design made up for a charming winter afternoon dress. The skirt, which is plaited into the belt, may be of velvet, duvetyne or broadcloth, with a belt of the same to confine a blouse and tunic of self color crepe de chine. Brown fur finishes the sleeves and tunic, while a gold cord surrounds the neck, tying demurely at the back with loops and tasseled ends. Gold rimmed or novelty buttons decorate the sleeves, the back seam of the skirt, and are also placed in a line through the center of the belt across the back.

Another modish suggestion for this design would be velvet, for the blouse and tunic, with charmeuse or heavy faille silk for the skirt. The trimming cord of gold, the brown fur banding and novelty buttons would combine effectively.

THE SANDMAN STORY FOR TO-NIGHT

BY MRS. FAWALKER

MRS. RABBIT'S STRATEGY.

MR. AND MRS. RABBIT and their three children, Bunny, Stubby and Pinkey, lived in the woods. Mrs. Rabbit kept the house clean and neat and knitted all the socks and mittens for her family, in the long winter evenings, but in the summer she was busy with her garden and Mr. Rabbit was also busy with his garden, for he prided himself on having the very finest vegetables that were grown anywhere around. Now, not far from the rabbit family, in the hollow of a tree, lived Mr. Crow and three children. Mr. Crow was a widower, having lost his wife, early in the season, and Mr. Crow had a hard time to provide for the whole family. Mrs Rabbit was a kind-hearted soul, and she often sent nice things to the Crow family from her table.

One day, after eating some of Mrs. Rabbit's delicious vegetables, Mr. Crow thought "that Rabbit family have a very nice garden and it is quite handy to this tree, I will not go so far tonight in search of food, but will take a look at Mr. Rabbit's garden." Of course, that was a very wrong thought for Mr. Crow to have, but you know crows are not conscientious creatures and do not hesitate to take anything they want if there is no one looking. The little Crows began to get up, and Mrs Rabbit remarked soon after that she was glad to see that the Crow children looked more like birds than scarecrows. "for," said she, "that is what they have looked like ever since their mother was taken away."

"We will soon have some nice corn," said Mr. Rabbit one morning. "I think, my dear you had better plan to have our neighbor Rabbits in for dinner the last of the week, and we will show them what good corn is like." So Mrs. Rabbit put on her bonnet and went to her neighbor's, Mrs. Gray Rabbit, and invited her and her family to dine with her on Saturday night. On Saturday morning, when Mr. Rabbit went to his garden to look at the corn, he threw up his hands and gave a loud scream and, when Mrs. Rabbit ran to him, wondering what could have happened, there he stood, holding his hands to his head. "What has happened?" she asked; "is it a woodchuck or a serpent?"

"Neither, my dear," answered Mr. Rabbit after a while, "but look, the corn is all gone. What shall we do? We have invited the Gray Rabbits to dinner and shall have no corn to give them. There was plenty of it last night. Where can it be?" "Well, don't worry about the Gray Rabbits; I can make a nut soup that will make them forget all about the corn. I have some in jars that I did up last fall, and there is plenty of vegetables, too. What we have to bother about is where the corn went and who has it, for it could not get away unless someone carried it." Then Mrs. Rabbit went into the house and put some biscuits, that were left over from breakfast, and a nice pat of butter, into a basket, and, putting on her bonnet, she started for the home of the Crow family. Mr. Crow was not at home, but the little Crows were, and they came running to the door when they heard the knock. "I have brought you some nice biscuits and a pat of fresh butter,' she told them. "I expected that our corn would be ready to pick this morning, but you shall have some just as soon as it is ripe." "Oh, we had corn for breakfast this morning," said one of the little crows. "Father was up early and cooked it for us."

This was what Mrs. Rabbit had suspected, and she hurried home to tell her husband. "That terrible Mr. Crow took your corn," she said. "Now I have a plan to show him up to the neighbors." "What is it?" asked her husband. "Wait and see," she said.

That night when the Gray Rabbit family came Mrs. White Rabbit had a nice dinner, and then she told them about the corn, but she did not tell them what she suspected. After the dishes were put away and Mr. Gray Rabbit and Mr. White Rabbit were sitting out by the door, smoking their pipes, Mrs. White Rabbit said: "Let us go over and call on the Crow family; they must be lonely these summer evenings without Mrs. Crow." Mr. White Rabbit took his pipe from his mouth and looked at his wife, but he had lived with her long enough to know better than to ask questions, so they all followed Mrs. White Rabbit.

Mr. Crow was at home and he was surprised when he saw his visitors and a little anxious also, but Mrs. Rabbit soon put him at his ease by saying, "We thought we would drop in a few minutes; we really should be more neighborly." Mr. Crow said he was glad to see them, and then Mrs. White Rabbit said, "I told Mrs. Gray Rabbit you would be very glad to see us and that you very likely would treat us to something very nice, as you always had the first of the season's vegetables."

Mr. Crow looked at her very hard, but she pretended not to notice him. "We are so late with our corn," she said, "but I expect you have been having it for some time now; you always beat everyone." Mr. Crow was so flattered that he hastened to say that he had had corn for breakfast and had some left which he would be glad to have them taste. When the corn was brought out of the closet Mr. White Rabbit asked, "where did you get this? I should like to get some also." Mr. Crow said he raised it in his own garden. "Where is your garden?" asked Mr. Rabbit. Mr. Crow stammered something about it being some distance from there. "When did you pick this corn?" asked Mrs. White Rabbit. "Last night," replied Mr. Crow, growing uneasy. "We had some corn already to pick," said Mr. White Rabbit, "and this morning when we went for it it was gone; it was just like this, and you were very fortunate not to have had yours taken also."

Everyone was looking very hard at Mr. Crow, and he stood first on one foot and then on the other, wishing that Mrs. White Rabbit and her friends would go, for he was sure that she knew where he got the corn. On their way home Mrs. White Rabbit said: "I think I gave him a scare and he will not bother us again. He knows that I will be watching for him."

Mr. White Rabbit did not reply, but he thought that he had a very clever wife, and that perhaps her way was the best, for he would have watched for Mr. Crow with a gun and then the little crows would have been orphans, and he knew Mrs. White Rabbit well enough to be sure she would have cared for them, and that would have meant more mouths to feed. He patted Mrs. Rabbit lovingly on the shoulder as they went into the house, and she knew how he thought her a helpmeet as well as a help-eat, and she was satisfied.

ANOTHER STORY TOMORROW.

LOVE AND COURTESY

BETTY VINCENT.

Love at First Sight.

IT'S perfect nonsense for a man to imagine himself wildly in love with a girl whom he has only seen once or twice, and to whom he has not even spoken.

Love is something more than an attraction to a pretty face. It is based on sympathy and friendship, and sympathy and friendship can only be developed after numerous meetings and conversations.

One may have an admiring memory of a beautiful woman whom he has met on a single occasion, just as one remembers a concert or a picture with delight. But I honestly do not believe that love at first sight is a possible phenomenon. I think it should be classed as an abnormal obsession, and that the person who imagines himself afflicted by it should consider that his mind is temporarily afflicted and exert all his will power to cure himself. And if he is in earnest about effecting a cure I believe he can do so in a comparatively short time.

His Choice.

"H. M." writes: "I have two girl friends. In answer to my questions one of them says that she loves me, the other that she doesn't know. Which of the two should I love?"

Unless you already love one or the other, you'd better give up both before continuing in your unfair attempt to win their affection.

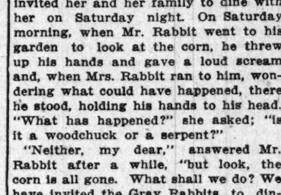

A Cynical Young Woman.

"W. D." writes: "I have been paying attention to a girl for some time, but every time I speak of love to her she replies: 'That's what they all say.' When I ask her if she loves me she refuses to tell me yes or no. How can I find out whether or not she cares."

Patient waiting and unremitting devotion ought to have some effect on the girl. She has probably had some unfortunate experiences.

"U. Y." writes: "A young man paid me attention for six months and said that he cared for me. I had to move to the country very suddenly, but though I could not see him before I left I wrote a note explaining everything. Yet I heard nothing from him for several months, until recently I chanced to meet him on the street and he seemed very glad to see me. Do you think he really cares for me?"

I doubt it, for he let you drop out of his life too easily.

Old Clothes for New

Simple Ways to Renovate Your Wardrobe

By Andre Dupont.

CLEANING THE LACE ON YOUR BEST GOWNS.

THIS year any quantity of lace is used on all really "dressy" costumes in the form of guimpes, sleeve ruffles, yoke effects, vests, jacket fronts, etc. The idea is a very pretty one if—and there is a great big if in the case—these laces are clean and fresh, for dirty lace is never anything else but revolting.

Now, there are so many ways for a woman to spend money that it is a pity to waste it in having her laces cleaned when she can easily do it herself if she only understands a few very simple secrets of the art. It is possible to dry-clean ruffles, vests that are attached by only one side to the frock or any sort of lace or net trimming that is not superimposed on the cloth or silk by laying the dress on a table and pulling out the ruffles or vest or whatever it is, putting white paper under this and sifting borax thickly over it. Then place another piece of paper on the top and put on a weight—an old flatiron will do. Leave it for several hours, but be very careful in doing this that the borax does not touch the material of the frock or it will fade it.

Old laces that are very much soiled can be made to look like new by steeping. Make a rather strong suds of white or naphtha soap and warm water. Pour this into an old preserve jar and put the lace in. Place it in a saucepan of boiling water and let it boil slowly for an hour.

When the lace is taken from the jar it should not be rubbed, but simply rinsed in cool water and then pinned out to dry. Real lace should never be ironed, as this always flattens the threads and takes away the new look. Squeeze out the water carefully with the hands and lay the lace face down on a board. An ironing board can be used for this purpose if you cover one end with a clean piece of old muslin stretched very tight over it and pinned on the wrong side of the board. Now pin each point of the lace through to the table, taking care in the case of collars or vests that the proper shape is preserved, because as the lace is pinned so will it be when it is dry. The lace should be stretched just a little bit, but be careful not to strain it. If put in properly the pins do not leave any mark and the lace will look as it did when it came from the shop. When quite dry gently pull the points into shape.

Very old lace, brown with the stains of age, can be brought back to its former beauty by steeping in milk in a preserve jar placed in a pan of boiling water. After the stains have been removed the lace should be gently squeezed through warm soapy water.

Real lace seldom requires stiffening, but the imitations sometimes look better if a little starch is used.

To freshen dingy black lace it should be steeped in cold tea and then stiffened with a very thin solution of gum arabic and water. It can be pinned on a board or pressed under two layers of tissue paper with a warm iron.

What Puzzled Her.

A SUFFRAGE meeting was drawing to a close. The speeches had all been made and the meeting was thrown open to questions by the audience.

Said the presiding officer: "Now, is there any woman here who would like to ask a question? Don't hesitate to ask any question you'd like to; any question at all about any phase of the woman question."

For a few moments there was silence. Then a woman arose and asked: "May I ask any question at all?"

"Certainly," said the speaker persuasively. "What question would you like to ask?"

"Well," said the woman, "I'd like to know how you got that smooth effect over your hips?"—Ladies' Home Journal.

How I Darkened My Gray Hair

Lady Gives Simple Home Recipe That She Used to Darken Her Gray Hair.

For years I have tried to restore my gray hair to its natural color with the prepared dyes and stains, but none of them gave satisfaction, and they were all expensive. I finally ran onto a simple recipe which I mixed at home that gives wonderful results. I gave the recipe, which is as follows, to a number of my friends, and they are all delighted with it. To 7 oz. of water add a small box of Barbo Compound, 1 oz. of bay rum and ¼ oz. of glycerine. Use every other day until the hair becomes the required shade, then every two weeks. It will not only darken the gray hair, but removes dandruff and scalp humors, and acts as a tonic to the hair. It is not sticky or greasy, does not rub off and does not color the scalp. You can prepare it at home a very little expense.—ADV

CUT THIS OUT

Recipe That Breaks a Cold in a Day and Cures Any Curable Cough.

"From your druggist get half ounce of Globe Pine Compound (Concentrated Pine) and two ounces of Glycerine. Take these two ingredients home and put them into a half pint of good whiskey; shake well and use in doses of one to two teaspoonfuls after each meal and at bedtime." Smaller doses to children, according to age. But be sure to get only the genuine Globe Pine Compound (Concentrated Pine). Each half-ounce bottle comes in a sealed tin screw-top case. If your druggist does not have it he will quickly get it. This formula comes from a reliable doctor and is certain. This was first published here six years ago, and druggists say it has been in constant demand. Published by the Globe Pharmaceutical laboratories of Chicago.

For Indigestion—Mix one ounce Catandir Compound; two ounces Essence of Pepsin; three ounces Syrup of Ginger. Take one to two teaspoonfuls after meals. This is said to have no equal. Catandir is that new compound. Any druggist has it or will get it. Published by the Globe Pharmaceutical laboratories of Chicago.—ADV.

SOCIETY NEWS

THE Choral Art Society will give its first concert Wednesday evening at the Sheldon Memorial Auditorium at 8:15 o'clock.

The society has been organized by a small coterie of women who have always been patronesses of music and art in St. Louis. It is composed of the best professional singers here, and is patterned after the choral societies of other cities. The concerts are open to the public, and depend upon the public for existence, although there is a small group of garantors who stand willing to make up any deficit.

The success of the first concert is being awaited with much interest by the music patrons here, and on its success depends the continuance of the society.

The guarantors of the Choral Art Society are: Mmes. Oscar Herf, Hudson E. Bridge, Louis Chauvenet, George F. Tower Jr., E. H. Semple, James F. How, Mr. Hayward Post, Claude Kilpatrick, William McMillan, George W. Parker, Ottmar Moll, B. Fahren, B. J. Taussig, George Warren Brown, Greenfield Sluder, Miss M. E. Mitchell and Messrs. Henry Potter and Isaac Hedges.

Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Joy, who have been residing in New York for about 10 years, are coming back to St. Louis to live. Mr. Joy will arrive in about a week and Mrs. Joy will come out to stay permanently in the autumn. Their son, Turner Joy, is a midshipman at the U. S. Naval Academy in Annapolis, and their 16-year-old daughter, Miss Mary Frances Joy, is at school in New Haven.

Mrs. Joy formerly was Miss Lucy Turner and was a belle about two decades ago. She was here last winter for a visit and was greatly entertained.

Mr. and Mrs. William Glasgow O'Fallon of 4364 West Pine boulevard have gone to Tucson, Ariz., to remain until April.

Mr. and Mrs. Julius S. Walsh of Hortense place will give a dinner dance at the Country Club Wednesday evening in honor of their guests, Mr. and Mrs. George Palmer of New York.

The Dansant, Buckingham Hotel Rose Parlor, Saturday, Jan. 24, 4 to 7 p. m.

Miss Helena Hogue, whose engagement to George F. Tittmann of St. Louis has just been announced, will be the fourth bride of the four Goucher College alumnae who assisted in an endowment fund benefit concert for their alma mater last spring. Notable among the four was Miss Jessie Wilson, daughter of the President, who was married to Francis B. Sayre.

The two other young women were Miss Helen Hays, who became the bride of Warren T. Powell of St. Paul in June, and Miss Lucia Sloan, who was married to Henry Harold Hopkins in December.

Miss Hogue's marriage will take place in April. Mr. Tittmann and his bride will spend their honeymoon on the Mediterranean, before returning to St. Louis to reside.

Miss Hogue has been prominent in Young Women's Christian Association work, and for several years was extension secretary of the local organization. Tittmann, the son of Mrs. Eugene Tittmann of 4276 Washington boulevard, is a member of several clubs and a polo player.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Ockerson of the Kingsbury Apartments have gone East for about 10 days and will visit Philadelphia, New York and Washington.

Mrs. Henry W. Bond of the Buckingham Hotel sailed from New York, Tuesday, on the Kronprinzessen Cecelie to join her daughter, Miss Marion Bond, who has been at Mme. Bennasan's school in the suburbs of Paris. They will return together about March 1.

Lieut. Alleyne von Schrader of the Medical Corps, U. S. A., and Mrs. von Schrader, who have been stationed at Fort Liscum, Alaska, have returned to the States and are at San Francisco for a visit to Dr. von Schrader's parents, Col. and Mrs. Fritz von Schrader, before going to their new post at Seattle, Wash. Mrs. von Schrader was formerly Miss Irene Bond of St. Louis.

Mr. and Mrs. John Zach of 4618 Tennessee avenue announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Amelia Marie Zach, to William James Paul of Detroit, Mich.

Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Browning of 4357 West Pine boulevard entertained at luncheon Tuesday at the Mercantile Club in honor of the Count and Countess Centenini of Paris. The other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Farish, Miss Emely Ludwig and Mrs. Maude W. Parham. The table was decorated with Killarney roses in the center and a bouquet of violets at each plate. Countess Centenini was Miss Josephine Ludwig of St. Louis and is visiting her sister, Miss Emely Ludwig.

Mrs. Andrew Sheridan of 5896 Cates avenue and her children have returned from several weeks' visit in Kansas City and St. Joseph, Mo.

GRANITE CITY SEEKS A WAY TO GET RID OF UNEMPLOYED

Hundreds Lured There by False Report of Work Annoy Residents by Begging Food.

The residents of Granite City are trying to solve the problem of what to do with hundreds of nonresident men who came there looking for work Monday morning after reading an article in a morning newspaper stating, what was not a fact, that 7000 men would be given employment, and who did not have money enough to get out of town.

Tuesday the housewives in the north end of town complained that they were being annoyed by a large number of back door callers asking for something to eat.

A woman who lives in the section house of the Chicago, Peoria & St. Louis Railway at Twenty-second street telephoned the police Monday that the waiting room was filled with negroes, and demanded police protection.

Officer Williams was sent to investigate and drove the negroes out of town. They told him they had come to Granite City from other towns because they thought several thousand men were to be employed there.

One hundred and fifty women stood in the crowd at the gates of the Corn Products and Refining Co., Monday morning and 75 or more waited with the crowd at the stamping mill, expecting to obtain employment.

The police say that a large number of men went there Sunday evening to be on hand for the opening and that many of them had no money to pay for lodging. Forty-two men slept in the city jail Sunday night and 23 slept there Monday night.

Two men left jobs in Hillsboro, Ill., where they were being paid $1.50 a day, expecting to get better wages in the "boom district." Israel Washington, a negro living at Dupo, Ill., said that he read the story and walked 15 miles to Granite City for work. He asked permission to sleep in the jail, saying that his feet were so sore he could not walk the streets all night.

EAST ST. LOUIS CITIZENS FIGHT SEWER ORDINANCE

Protest Against Confirmation of Council's $341,600 Bond Sale at Meeting.

More than 50 residents of the Winstanley district of East St. Louis met at Twenty-second street and Ridge avenue Tuesday night to protest against the confirmation of the $341,600 sewer ordinance recently passed by the City Council.

John S. Geraghty of 509 North Twenty-second street, said he had been informed that the sale of the bonds for the work would not bring more than 80 per cent of their face value because of the city's financial standing. He also said because of this fact more money would have to be expended for the work than would be necessary.

Frank G. Wurth of 477 North Twenty-second street, said a Chicago banker told him that East St. Louis bonds would not sell readily because of the city's financial condition.

Arrangements were made to employ an attorney to present the protest in Judge Wilton M. Vandeventer's court Wednesday, Jan. 28.

GIRL, NOT KNOWING AGE, DENIED LICENSE TO WED

Mother Also Had Date Confused but Application Is Granted When Record Is Produced.

When Peter Freeder and Miss Lillian M. Dwyer of East St. Louis, applied at the Marriage License Office Tuesday afternoon for a license Clerk Smith asked their ages. Miss Dwyer said she was 15, whereupon the application was denied.

Later Mrs. Margaret A. Dwyer, the prospective bride's mother, appeared with the couple at the office. She said her daughter was 16 years old. She did not remember when her daughter was born, so Clerk Smith suggested that the christening record be obtained.

A messenger was sent to St. Patrick's Church and returned with a copy of the record which showed Miss Dwyer was born Oct. 7, 1897. The couple was then married by Justice of the Peace Blanchard. Mrs. Dwyer lives at 1102 North Ninth street.

ALLEGED FORGER OF EXPRESS ORDERS HELD

Former Employe Said to Have Cashed Warrants in Several Cities.

Roy McCullom, 21 years old, of 1514 College avenue, East St. Louis, arrested Monday night and charged with embezzlement, waived preliminary hearing before Justice Zieglemeier Tuesday afternoon and was bound over to the grand jury. His bond was fixed at $1000.

McCullom is said to have been an employe of the Southern Express Co., at Moundville, Ala. He is charged with having stolen a money warrant book and having forged the name of the express agent and cashed the warrants in Waterloo, Decatur and O'Fallon, Ill., Brooklyn, N. Y., Thompsonville, Conn., Washington Courthouse, O., and Frankfort, N. Y.

McCullom was married three months ago to Miss Anna Gossette, a niece of former Mayor Silas Cook of East St. Louis. Cook probably will be retained to defend McCullom.

The Illinois State Undertakers' Association will hold its annual three days' convention in the Illmo Hotel, East St. Louis, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, Jan. 27, 28 and 29.

The convention will be informal and lectures and demonstrations will be given by Prof. George H. Scherive of St. Louis. Frank and Charles Kurrus, M. J. Walsh, Thomas Burke and William Degen compose a committee which will arrange a banquet the last night. New officers will be chosen. William C. Wunderlich of Joliet is president and H. M. Kirkpatrick of Elmwood is secretary.

HELD FOR $175 FORGERY

East St. Louisan Accused of Signing Checks in Aunt's Name.

Andrew Wittig, charged with having forged the name of his aunt, Mrs. Charles Schuetz, to checks aggregating $175, which the police say he cashed in various stores in East St. Louis, was held to the grand jury by Justice Blanchard Tuesday.

The police say Wittig wrote the checks on the Southern Illinois National Bank, payable to himself, and signed his aunt's name. When the canceled checks were returned to Mrs. Schuetz, she denied the signature.

St. John's M. E. Sunday School at Edwardsville has elected J. G. Delicate superintendent for the twenty-first consecutive year.

BOY, RUSHED TO HOSPITAL IN SPECIAL CAR, DIES

Amputation of Leg of Youngster Run Down by Car Fails to Save His Life.

An effort to save the life of Frank Osenski, a 6-year-old schoolboy of Worden, Ill., when he was run down by a McKinley car, failed, after the boy was rushed in a special car 37 miles to St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Granite City. Physicians amputated his right leg at the knee, but he died at 5 p. m., Tuesday, a few hours after the accident.

The boy, a son of John Osenski, a miner, was returning to school about 1 p. m., along the tracks of the McKinley line. The car approached from behind, and although the boy saw it, he became confused and failed to get out of the way. Because of the presence of a 6-day-old baby in the Osenski home, news of the lad's death is withheld from his mother.

MUST REMAIN A WIDOW TO GET THIRD OF ESTATE

Mrs. W. C. Penn and Children Get $250,000 Property Left by Belleville Man.

If Mrs. Margaret A. Penn, widow of William C. Penn, who died in Belleville, Jan. 10, remains single she will inherit one-third of his estate estimated to be worth over $250,000. If she marries again she will receive only what the law allows.

The remainder of the estate is to be divided among the sons, Fred and Eugene, and the daughter, Gladys, with the exception of $23,000 to be deducted from Fred's share and an amount equal to the value of the Penn Building, in Belleville, which is left to her, from Gladys' share.

Mrs. Penn is named as executrix. The will was executed April 12, 1909, and a codicil to it, telling of the $23,000 advanced to the son, Fred, was drawn July 16, 1913.

LICENSE TO WED REFUSED TO DELAND GIRL, ONLY 16

She has Letter of Consent, but East St. Louis Clerk Tells Her to Send for Mother.

Despite the fact that Miss Sarah A. Walsh, 16 years old, of Deland, Ill., an applicant for a marriage license, had what purported to be a letter of consent from her mother, Mrs. Leona Bridges, License Clerk Smith in East St. Louis refused a license.

Miss Walsh and Earl McKean, 24 years old, of Deland, carrying a suit case, applied at the office for the license at 8 o'clock, Wednesday morning. The note Miss Walsh carried read: "To Marriage License Clerk—If my daughter applies for a license give it to her, as it is satisfactory to me. Mrs. Leona Bridges."

Smith advised Miss Walsh to send for her mother. The couple departed without saying what steps they would take to obtain the license.

LIQUOR MEN FINED IN CALHOUN COUNTY

One Offender Said to Have Been Named in Indictment of 81 Counts.

The newly organized Anti-Saloon League of Calhoun County, made up of the wealthy farmers, is aiding in prohibiting the illegal sale of intoxicants and as a result of its efforts the January term of the Calhoun Court, which has just adjourned, handled an unusual number of cases of violation of the anti-saloon and gambling laws.

The Anti-Saloon League hired a Chicago attorney to assist the State's Attorney T. J. Selby, and the offenders who fought the charges hired two lawyers, but many of the accused pleaded guilty and paid fines.

It is said an indictment found against one Calhoun man contained 81 counts.

BELLEVILLE ASKS STATE TO INVESTIGATE CARFARE

Mayor and City Attorney Want Utilities Commission to Pass on Interurban Fares.

Mayor R. E. Duvall and City Attorney Schaumleffel of Belleville went to Springfield and asked the Public Utilities Commission of Illinois to investigate the question of street car fare between Belleville and East St. Louis and also the matter of ordering the street car company to place its tracks in the center of the roadway.

The company is now charging 10 cents between Belleville and East St. Louis, making two collections inside the city limits. The city's effort to provide a five-cent fare was knocked out several years ago in the Federal Court when Judge Wright issued an injunction restraining the city from enforcing a five-cent ordinance.

MUSTY RECORDS IN COURT

Wagon Load of Them Used in Fence Line Quarrel.

A wagon load of court records, many of them musty with age, is in evidence in the Circuit Court at Edwardsville, where the occupants of neighboring farms are trying to prove ownership of a few feet of land. Charles Rule of St. Jacob is the plaintiff and his next door neighbors, the Schoeck family, defendants. The latter comprise William Schoeck, Mary Schoeck, Edwin Schoeck, Robert Schoeck, Lenora Schoeck, Ella Schoeck, Bertha Schoeck, Lee Schoeck, Pauline Bohmann and Frances Thalman.

Arguments and surveys failing to settle the question of whose land the dividing fence was on, a suit in ejectment was brought. The County Clerk, his chief deputy, the Probate Clerk and the Circuit Clerk were subpenaed and ordered to produce certain records.

SUES ESTATE FOR BOARD

Bethalto Woman Wants $2446; Property Worth $400.

Mrs. Adaline Titchenal of Bethalto is urging a claim in the Probate Court at Edwardsville for 1631 days' services to Clement Klein, a boarder at her home. She thus seeks $2,446.50. Klein's estate is worth about $400.

Klein boarded for about five years with Mr. and Mrs. Titchenal and his will provided a legacy of $300 for Charles Titchenal. For burial expenses $200 was set aside, and half that amount for incidentals. This left about $400.

Doctor Breaks Arm Cranking Auto.

Dr. Howard T. Wharff of Edwardsville was called Tuesday evening to the home of his son, Dr. Howard E. Wharff, 905 St. Louis street, Edwardsville, and found that the younger physician had fractured his right arm in cranking his automobile.

Tulley of Granite City, who was in charge of the Madison County distribution, and shows the following sales: Granite City, 15,010; Edwardsville, 11,566; Alton, 4818; Collinsville, 3600; Highland, 2150. The county society realized for its own uses $283.22 from these sales.

Three Youths Sent to Reformatory.

John Wright, Virgil Bridges and William Blake, youths, indicted for breaking into Delmore and Mosley's saloon, Thirteenth and State streets, East St. Louis, pleaded guilty before Judge Vandeventer Tuesday and were sentenced to the Pontiac Reform School until they become of age.

BUYERS HAVE A GOOD INNING ON STOCK EXCHANGE

Prices Score Gains of One to Two Points; Trading Is Active.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted financial review today, says:

"To a very considerable extent, today's outburst of great activity and rising prices on the Stock Exchange was the financial public's response to the President's message.

"That this should have been its character, was hardly due to any unanimous conviction as to the merits of the proposed new legislation.

"That may or may not come later. It was the President's positive and reiterated statements as to the mutual attitude of Government and business which, to the business public at large, undoubtedly superseded all other considerations.

"The law-making process, as the session runs on, may or may not be agreeable to the more conservative people, but the position openly taken by the White House, as to general policy, has been promptly recognized as a new order of things at Washington, and this, appealing as it does to the market's imagination, has the psychological effect for which this was the psychological moment.

"The manner in which this morning's newspapers, even those of the politically Bourbon type, hastened to lead a chorus of enthusiasm and fairly exemplified the mood of their constituency.

Money Market Easier.

"A stock market always gives particularly emphatic echo to a mood of this sort. It did so today, when the largest total business done in seven months was recorded both for stocks and bonds; in both of which, the rise in prices was notable.

"Just how far today's response of the Stock Exchange would have been possible, had not financial developments pure and simple favored it, may be debatable. As it happened, influences of that sort today helped in the movement.

"Bankers laid great stress on the high prices bid for the New York State loan; such sales, like the Pennsylvania's offering in 1908 and the St. Paul's in 1913 being recognized landmarks in an investment movement.

"Behind this the world-wide fall in money rates continued. At London, today's decline was nearly ¼ per cent, at Vienna ¼, at Amsterdam ⅛ and the Paris private discount rate going down 1-16 further to 3 7-16, touched a figure below that which the Bank of France will fix when it reduces its official rate.

Bank Rates to Be Lowered.

"Both the London and Berlin bank rates will be lowered again tomorrow, and Lombard street was already talking today of plans for a 3½ per cent level.

"From business circles the day's advices were of a cheerful character, though no very definite developments were reported.

"The Iron Age, in its weekly review, notes that the change towards better sentiment has become more marked in the steel trade, that one leading steel company had a larger total of orders and specifications than in any week in eight months, and that the note of conciliation in the President's message has plainly added to the better feeling.

"Today's highly successful offering of $51,000,000 4½ per cent New York State bonds at Albany naturally attracted a good deal of attention.

"The average price obtained by the State was at least 106.077—the all or none bid made by one syndicate—was fully 2 points above the average price looked for a month ago when the loan was first announced.

"At the today's sale the State disposed of its bonds on a 4.20 per cent basis, as against a 3.99 per cent basis for the last offering of long-term bonds of June 6, 1912, when the interest rate offered investors was only 4 per cent and the amount of the loan only $25,950,000.

"The fact that today's loan was heavily over-subscribed, showed that there was plenty of capital awaiting such an investment, and that a large amount represented by the unsuccessful subscriptions will now be released for other investments.

"The active bidding for the bonds on the curb advanced the price more than 1½ points above the price bid at the sale.

"The success of this loan had immediate influence upon the general bond market, which reflected excellent investment support.

"There was a further reduction in time money rates, and 60-day loans were ¼ per cent lower at 2¾ to 3 per cent.

"The banks made considerable offerings of time money, the steady decline in quotations causing many institutions to enlarge their holdings of bond and short-term notes.

"There was a slightly easier tone to foreign exchange rates, but the position of the market was little changed and the indications pointed to further gold engagements for Paris."

WALL STREET SUMMARY.

The Wall Street Summary said:

"New York State's $51,000,000 4½ per cent 50-year bond sale takes place at noon today.

"President's message meets with favorable editorial comment here and abroad.

"Lord Strathcona died early this morning.

"Members of National Association of Bank Supervisors recommend that all State banks enter Federal reserve system.

"Secretary Redfield says trade conditions are fundamentally sound and that reaction from recent business depression has already begun."

DETAILED REPORT OF DAY'S WALL STREET TRANSACTIONS

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—Speculative sentiment was more hopefully exposed and after a slight pause from the opening dealings, the advance was resumed. The Pacific group was especially strong, Northern and Southern Pacific gaining a point each.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—A strong tone pervaded the market at the opening today. The active shares were bought in large amounts and, with few exceptions, higher prices were quoted. Reading, Lehigh Valley, Northern Pacific, Louisville & Nashville and Western Union made gains of about a point.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—Improving tendencies were evident today in the stock market, with the short interest an active factor in the advance.

Special stocks were influenced by favorable trade news. This was particularly true of the steel and railroad equipment groups. Many new high prices for the movement were reached.

Bonds were strong.

The high price realized for the New York State $51,000,000 of 4½ per cents stimulated the general market. These bonds sold on the curb at 107⅞. Prominence of Reading had a good effect, as it probably indicated completion of the recent selling that had held it back.

A sharp reaction in Reading checked the upward movement. When out-of-town buying orders began to come into the market as a result of the successful State bond sale, prices again advanced with a heavy demand for the Western stocks.

COTTON MARKET STEADY ON EASTERN EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—The cotton market today opened steady, unchanged to 2 points lower, under scattered selling inspired by easier cables and private ginning reports, and there was enough buying to hold prices around or a shade over the opening figures during the early trading.

Reports that Japan and China had been good buyers of spot cotton in the Western belt during the past week, were accompanied by some trade demand for near months here and were followed by rather a firmer market later in the morning, with prices working 2 or 3 points net higher. The late market was steady.

Livestock Report Shows Records in Value Broken.

CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—The annual livestock report of the Orange Judd Farmer, made public here today, shows a farm wealth in this form of property that breaks all records. The increase in value during the past 12 months is placed at $443,758,000, while the total value of all classes of farm animals reached $5,596,024,000. Of this total, horses furnished $2,185,555,000, mules $520,330,000, milch cows $1,032,960,000. By way of comparison, the total value represents 50 per cent more than the total money in circulation in this country, and is almost equal to all the deposits in the more than 7400 National banks now in existence. The increase in value during the last 12 months is 12 times as great as the value of the United States and Alaskan fisheries for the year; seven times as great as the total lumber production, and three and a half times more than the yearly production of gold and silver from the mines of the United States. The numbers of meat-producing animals, however, show a decrease, beef cattle showing a falling off in numbers of 1,762,000 head, or 5 per cent; hogs, a decrease of 4,082,000, or 7 per cent. Milch cows show no material change, while horses increase slightly in number. With the decrease in numbers goes a heavy increase in average sale per head, milch cows having advanced 21 per cent; other cattle, 18 per cent; hogs, 17 per cent, and sheep, 8 per cent during the past year.

PRICE CURRENT.

Another spell of warm weather over the winter wheat belt brought a thaw which ended in rain over a large portion of the area and snow over a small portion. The plant is not in condition to have a freeze on the heels of the wet weather. Hog slaughterings in the West for the week ending Jan. 17 were 648,000, compared with 686,000 for the preceding week, and 504,100 for the corresponding period a year ago. Total slaughterings from Nov. 1 to date were 7,268,000, compared with 6,714,000 the corresponding period one year ago.

Severe cold weather over the country, with predictions for its continuation, helped the wheat bulls hold prices firm Wednesday. Speculation was entirely professional, however.

The easier American cables and the pressure at Winnipeg were offset in Liverpool by less favorable reports from Argentine and the strength in Buenos Ayres and Rosa Rio and at the opening values were ½d higher. Following the opening there was a further gain of ⅛d, which was maintained throughout the morning, but trading was dull. The quiet demand for spot and expectations of liberal world's shipments again this week and liberal stocks at all centers served to check the advance.

Corn futures were easy, despite low temperatures, which the bulls had hoped would hold the market. Prices touched the low point on the present downturn, following some selling of Chicago futures. Oats were steady.

Liverpool corn opened ¼d higher. The easier American cables were offset by firmness in Argentine markets and less favorable crop news from that quarter. The cold weather in England is increasing consumption. Plate spot was ⅜d higher. During the morning the market was dull at the opening advance.

Broomhall's Argentine agent cables that general pessimism prevails regarding the wheat harvest and estimates regarding the exportable surplus are again reduced to 64,000,000 bu. In Cordoba some damage has resulted to corn from locusts and Santa Fe needs rain badly.

Domestic wheat receipts were moderate. Minneapolis received 326 cars, against 270 last week and 437 last year. Duluth 15, against 39 and 92. Winnipeg 56, against 250 and 257. Minneapolis wheat stocks increased 150,000 bu for four days.

Liverpool wheat closed ¼d higher; corn ⅛d higher. Berlin wheat ¼c higher. Budapest, ½c lower. Antwerp, unchanged. Paris ¼c to 1c lower, flour ¼c to ⅜c lower.

The annual livestock report of the Orange Judd Farmer, prepared by B. W. Snow, shows a decrease as compared with year ago of 1,762,000 head of cattle other than milch cows, or 5 per cent; a decrease of 4,082,000 hogs, or 7 per cent, and a decrease of 2,353,000 sheep, or 5 per cent. Nearly three-fourths of the decrease in hogs is found in the seven states from Ohio to Kansas, which produce the commercial corn supply, while one-half of the cattle shortage is in the same states. It appears, therefore, that the shortage in corn is in a measure offset by a marked shortage in the meat producing animals in the same district.

Local wheat receipts were 81,600 bu, or 53 cars local, 15 through; last year, 85,200 bu, or 42 cars local, 29 through. Corn receipts 70,800 bu, or 46 cars local, 13 through; last year 103,200 bu, or 36 cars local, 50 through. Oats receipts 64,600 bu, or 20 cars local, 18 through; last year 66,300 bu, or 15 cars local, 24 through.

Chicago wired: "Chicago stocks of corn at the end of the week are likely to be in the neighborhood of 9,000,000 bu, and with practically no demand this huge stock is burdensome. There is only one way to get rid of it and that is put our prices down to an export level."

Clearances: Wheat 338,000 bu; corn, 26,000 bu; oats, 16,000 bu; flour, 14,000. Wheat and flour 401,000.

Chicago wheat cars totaled 80, corn 47, oats 137. Estimated Thursday: Wheat 62, corn 216, oats 73.

St. Louis cash corn closed ½c lower on mixed and yellow; white 1c higher for selections, but unchanged otherwise; demand fair.

Cash oats ¼c to ½c higher; demand fair.

Cash wheat was irregular in sympathy with futures.

THE JARR FAMILY

By ROY L. M'CARDELL

Mr. Jarr Is Solemnly Introduced to a Home-Made Menagerie.

"WOULD you like to make a little journey to the late home of the departed?" asked Mr. Michael Angelo Dinkston after he had collected 50 cents a head from all present in Gus's for what he designated as "floral tributes" for himself.

"Very few bouquets were handed me in life. I want all I can get since my untimely demise," Mr. Dinkston declared.

"Hey, you," said Gus, rousing from the mystic spell. "You may be a crazy feller, but I ain't. A choke is a choke. But after a long while it ain't a choke any more. You ain't dead and I know it and you know it—so why go ahead mit this foolishness?"

And Gus commenced to blow into the shell glasses and polish them with the glass towel, for with Gus a sanitary neatness was the first law in his popular cafe.

"Listen a moment," said Mr. Dinkston calmly. "A lot of people have been buried alive, haven't they?" (Gus had to admit he had heard of such things.)

"Well, then," said Mr. Dinkston, "if a lot of people who seemed to be dead were alive why can't it be possible that one person who seemed alive was dead?"

"By gollies, I never thought of it that way!" exclaimed Mr. Slavinsky, gazing in open admiration at the logician. "He got you there, Gus. Too bad you ain't alive to have a drink," he added to Mr. Dinkston.

"Omar shall refute you in this," replied Mr. Dinkston softly. "For what says Omar?

"My clay with long oblivion has gone dry,
But fill me with the old familiar juice,
Methinks I might recover by and by!"

"Who said that?" asked Gus, pricking up his ears.

"Omar," replied Mr. Dinkston.

"Elmer never said a word like it," sniffed Gus. "Don't I know my own bartender? Elmer don't know this feller O'Bliven you talk about who went dry. I bin in this Assembly district 20 years. And there ain't no O'Bliven. Stevens, yes; but O'Bliven, no!

"Even if he was dry, Elmer ain't going to chuck out any sympathy and let 'em hang the house up. Because unless I know who it is, and especially when I do know who it is, they don't get no credit."

"As I was going to remark," said Mr. Dinkston, for he knew the futility of arguing with Gus, "a lot of people are dead and don't know it. But I'm dead and I do know it."

"You gotta hand it to him that he knows whether he's alive or not," murmured Mr. Jarr.

"Well, sure, it's his business," Gus admitted. "But this thing has gone far enough in my place."

"Let us then go to my late residence," murmured Mr. Dinkston. And he led the way to the front room of old Mrs. Dusenberry's little ground-floor flat, where he maintained a residence and his studios of mimeography or School of Sign Language.

"I do not bow to the conventions," said Mr. Dinkston. "Hence you do not note any crepe on the door. In fact," here Mr. Dinkston sunk his voice to a whisper, "I am keeping my demise a secret from the dear old lady with whom I lodge. Poor soul! She is greatly attached to me, and the news of my death would shock her greatly. For that reason, I desire my interment strictly private. S-h-sh!"

He laid his hand to his lip and bowed very courteously to the old lady from Indiana, who smilingly admitted her lodger and Mr. Jarr, Mr. Rangle and Mr. Slavinsky. Gus had stayed behind, after announcing that he would go to the funeral, but he would not be able to "sit up" with the late lamented.

"There's a mouse!" cried Mr. Jarr as a little gray rodent came out from under the sofa and sat up on its haunches in the middle of the room.

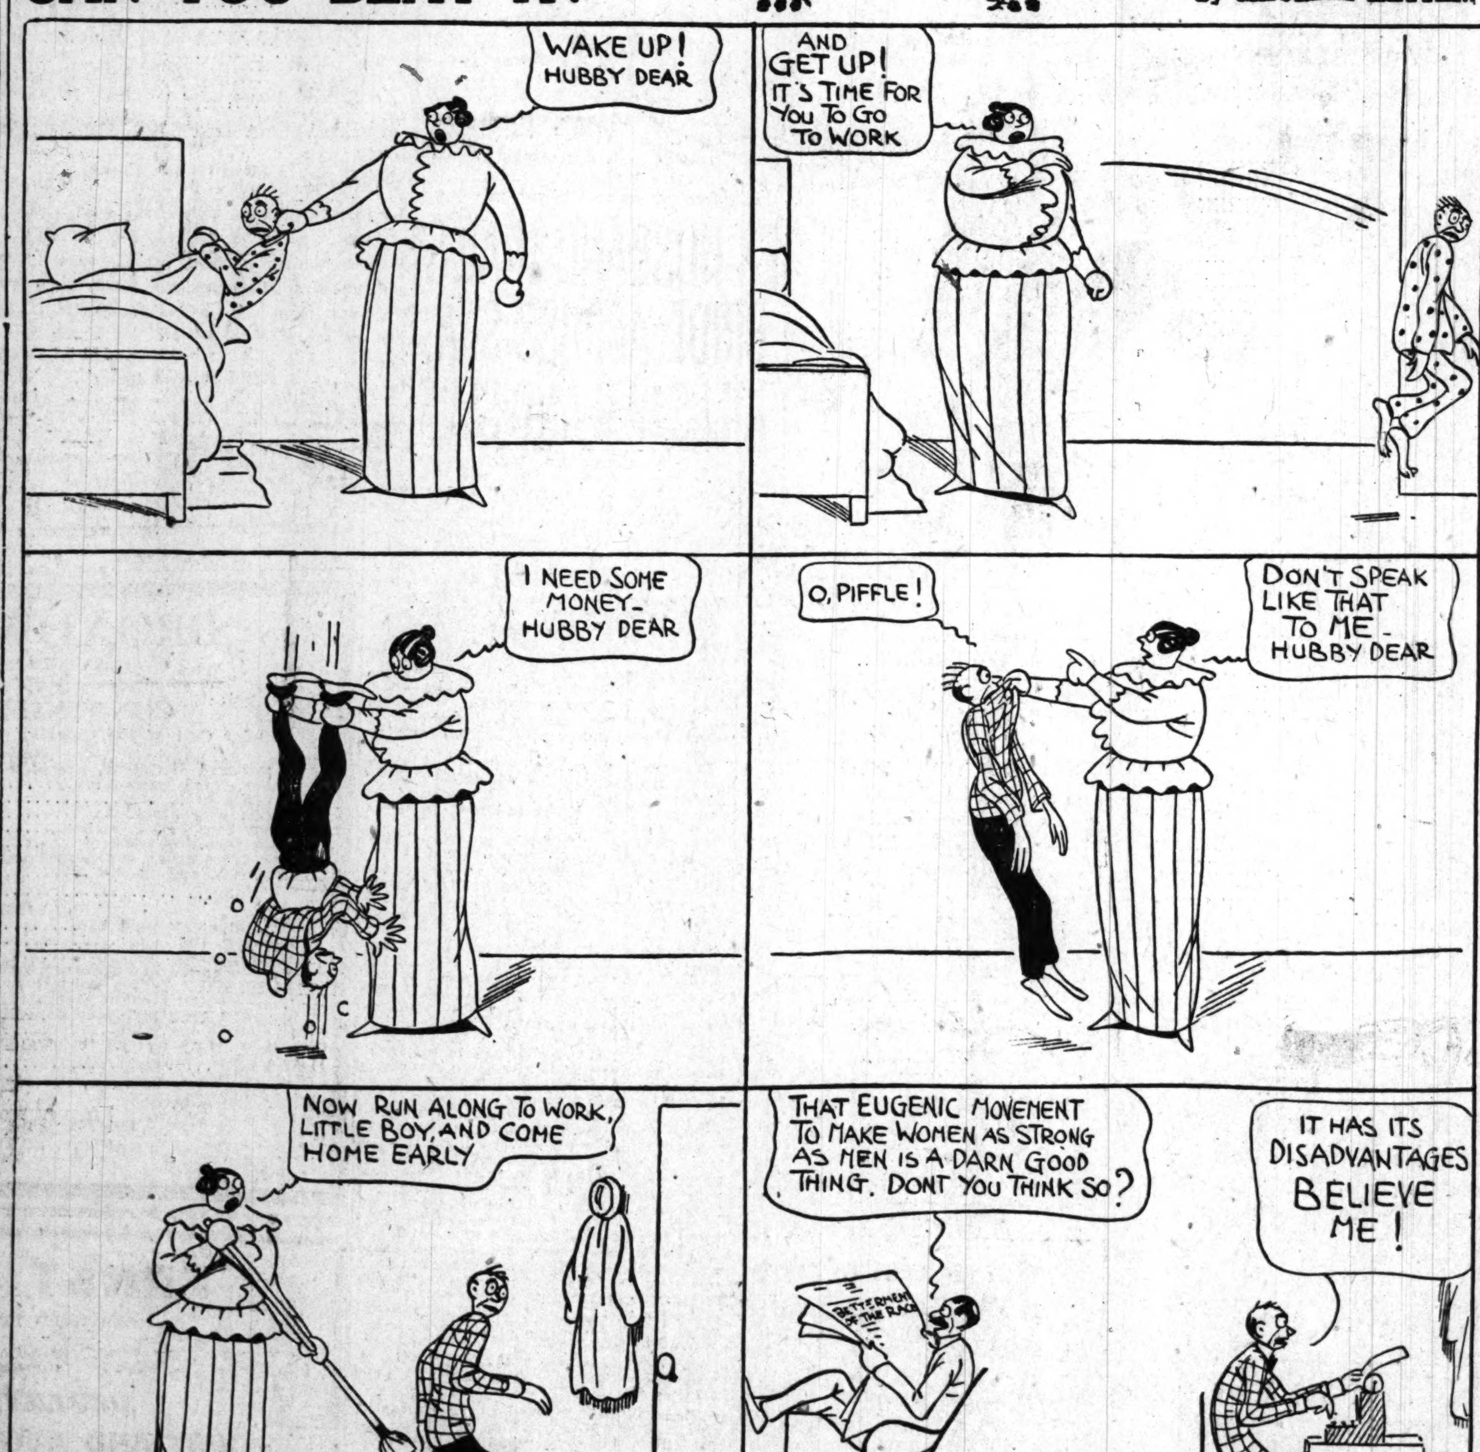

"Yes," said Mr. Dinkston; "that is Mary. And here come Alice and Richard."

And two other mice came out and squeaked and chattered, while Mr. Dinkston fed them crumbs of cheese he had brought from Gus' "business men's lunch."

"And here is Alfred, my pet cockroach, and Elfrida, the hen roach," added Mr. Dinkston, as two large, fat cockroaches scurried out for the feast. "I wish my pets to be well taken care of. Mrs. Dusenberry, I grieve to say, has no partiality for them. And here, too," and Mr. Dinkston opened a clothes press, "are my tame moths. See, I keep an old pair of flannel trousers here for their pasturage. Hence they do not feed upon my other garments. Anyway, I am wearing my other garments. Please," and a tear stood in his eye, "be kind to them, now that I am no longer here!"

Stories St. Louisans Tell

IN THE COUNTY.

P. DE C. BALL, a manufacturer of ice machines, who lives in the county, motored into the city recently with his wife and son, Paulison. When near the city limits a tramp standing in the middle of the road barred their progress. He was a typical "Dusty Roads," but a giant in stature and weighed over 250 pounds. He faced the auto with his head thrown back, arms folded defiantly across his chest. The machine came almost to a stop and passed slowly by the man, who never moved a muscle.

"Did you ever see anything like that?" exclaimed Mrs. Ball.

"I never did," replied Paulison, quickly. "That must be the Colossus of Rhodes."
